Farm Bill Creates Uncertainty And New Playing Field

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A lack of easy access to details and provisions included in the 1996 Farm Bill has created uncertainty and confusion about what farmers should do strategically to survive an anticipated transition in historic agricultural production and marketing practices.

Information has been coming slowly out of Washington D.C. as U.S. Department of Agriculture officials attempt to analyse the document, summarize and publicize its intent.

However, it is apparent that producers of insurable crops better decide before the end of the week if they want to sign up for the government disaster protection.

And the kicker is that if a producer does not sign up by May 2, then he will not be eligible for that insurance for the next seven years.

According to a news release by the Ad Hoc Associates for the National Crop Insurance Services, Virginia Beach, Va., "Although the requirement linking crop insurance to several other farm programs has been dropped under the new legislation, the net result is that if you do not sign up for the minimum (catastrophic) level of crop insurance coverage, you will forfeit your rights to any crop disaster relief, even access to emergency loans.

"Those producers who heeded Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman's urgent advice to sign up for higher levels of crop insurance coverage are already protected, as are those who already signed up for only the minimum CAT coverage.

"The one-time window of opportunity to sign up for CAT coverage is for those producers who are totally exposed to the risks of crop disaster without any government protection."

Further, the news release stated that, "Should any producer who has only the basic CAT coverage choose to concel their policy during this (until May 2) period, they will have to sign a waiver acknowledging that they understand they will not be eligible for any disaster assistance for any insurable crop.

Put Aside Worries For Night Of Fun At Poultry Banquet

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Country music star Ricky Skaggs is the featured entertainment at the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation Annual Fund Raising Banquet next Wednesday evening, April 24, here at the Hershey Convention Center.

For a few moments, poultry producers can set aside concerns about feed prices and rumors of potential corn shortages at the end of the summer and have a night of fun.

Social hour begins at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m.

At the banquet, the main dish will be turkey piccata (turkey sauteed with fresh herbs and white caper butter), along with au gratin potatoes and grilled vegetables. Dessert will be a "Hershey Snowball" (vanilla ice cream covered with toasted coconuts).

Last year, 1,500 people sat down for a night of dinner and entertainment, according to John Hoffman, executive director of the Federation.

"The Federation's most important activity in the past year has been food safety," said Hoffman. He highlighted the successful hazards analysis critical control points (HACCP) program implemented through the all-volunteer Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program, or PEQAP.

About 225 layer producers are signed up under PEQAP, which has several programs designed to control diseases at the production level.

Hoffman also noted the success the worker's compensation program of the Federation in the past year. Also, members have been kept informed about the Federation activitles through the monthly newsletter, Poultry Post.

The Federation provides a number of important benefits for producers, including:

• Food safety. The Federation is the only state agricultural organization that employs a veterinarian to manage food safety programs for producers and processors.

• Poultry health leadership. The Poultry Health Committee continuously monitors flock health and avian influenza surveillance data to maintain effective control and eradication programs, including the use of the Federation indemnity fund.

• Nutrient management. The Federation constantly participated in the development of nutrient management legislation and regulations to ensure effective but fair requirements for poultry and egg producers.

Beef Council Responds To Negative BSE Media Coverage

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Beef producers and industry leaders are outraged at a blatantly anti-beef segment which aired on the April 16 Oprah Winfrey TV Show.

Pre-airing promotions touted the episode as a food safety educational program for consumers, but a beef industry spokesperson and a scientific expert had 75 percent of their taped comments edited out of the program in favor of anti-beef activist Howard Lyman. The show appeared on six stations in Pennsylvania.

"The show provided anti-meat activists with a platform for biased and unsubstantiated claims against beef, and had done a tremendous disservice to millions of American consumers," said David Ivan, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council. "The episode was one of beef-bashing — not a responsible discussion of BSE and the safety of the American beef supply. Oprah took a complex technical issue and turned it into an hour of unjustified scare-mongering."

The Pennsylvania Beef Council is aggressively responding to the negative show about BSE, often referred to as "Mad Cow Disease." Beef Council staff has contacted all of the stations on which the program aired in Pennsylvania to express their dissatisfaction with the Oprah episode. The Council has also offered to meet with the news directors of the stations to discuss BSE so that each station is prepared to address

TIMONIUM, Md. — C Arlanda Starb Zobee, a senior three-year-old Starbuck daughter owned by Paul "Butch" Harrison III and Billy Gregg, took grand champion honors at the Maryland Spring Holstein show. The show was held in Timonium at the State fairgrounds on April 13.

"She just developed and matured into a real nice cow," said Butch of the purchased animal, which was also named the Intermediate Champion in the open class, and had the 2nd best udder in her Three-Year-Old class. She was All Maryland senior two-year-old and made 20,000 pounds of milk in 1995. Butch, his parents Paul and Susan, and sister Shannon milk 100 head at their Dun-Loafin Farm in Burkittsville, Frederick County.

National Egg Market

APRIL 17, 1996

Prices were unchanged to lower for the large sizes in New England and parts of the Midwest, unchanged to higher for mediums in parts of the Midwest, and unchanged on the balance. The market tone was about steady. Demand was mostly moderate. Supplies were adequate to fully adequate for the large sizes, and light weights remained adequate to short. Breaking stock supplies were usually adequate for the moderate to fairly good demand, and some surplus graded product sold into breaking channels; prices were unchanged to higher. Live hen offerings remained at least sufficient for the unaggressive demand.

E. PA & NJ Poultry

The final weighted average was slightly higher compared to a week ago. Movement off farms was adequate to fully adequate, and slaughter schedules were full in most locations. Demand was moderate at best. Finished sales were fair at generally steady values. The undertone was steady.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
APRIL 17, 1996

Wheat bids finished mostly higher, despite wet weather forecasts and continued lack of new export sales. Active buying interest on the board after recent sharp declines, offered support to wheat bids. Corn bids regained some of yesterday's losses due to improved export demand overnight. Soybean bids were up sharply from higher corn bids. Wheat 3 to 8 cents higher except Portland 10 cents lower. Corn 1 to 5 cents higher. Sorghum 3 to 7 cents higher. Soybeans 7 to 11 cents higher. Chances for rainfall remains in forecasts for winter wheat areas next week and export demand still very slow for wheat. However, recent declines were recovered due to active fund buying on the board. Very good export demand from Japan and Mexico overnight gave corn bids a boost. Spillover strength from corn and wheat pits pushed bean bids sharply higher but the active harvest in Brazil, tempered advances. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APRIL 22-28, 1996

R. B. THOMAS BORN, APRIL 24.

PEARS FOR YOUR HEIRS

Except in Alaska, Georgia, Kansas, Virginia, and Wyoming, April 26 is celebrated as Arbor Day, a chance to plant a tree. Remember, "He who plants a walnut tree expects not to eat of the fruit," because the growing time is lengthy, but "the willow will buy a horse before the oak will pay for a saddle," because the willow grows rapidly. As for pruning skills, "short boughs, long vintage," or "make the vine poor, and it will make you rich." The ancients believed that the world was born of a great tree, the Universe Tree or Mundane Tree. Closely related were the Tree of Knowledge and Tree of Life.

He that plants a tree plants for posterity.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ "If an oak be set near unto a walnut tree it will not live."
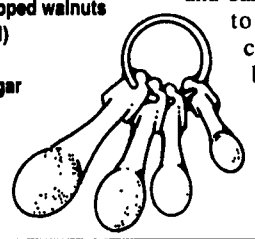
– Pliny

APPLE NUT CAKE

3 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 heaping teaspoon cinnamon
3/4 cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups chopped apples
1 cup chopped walnuts (optional)
2 eggs
2 cups sugar

Sift together first five ingredients. Add oil, vanilla, apples, and nuts and stir well. Beat together eggs and sugar until light, then fold egg mixture into apple mixture. Place in greased 10-inch tube pan and bake at 350° F for 60 to 70 minutes. Let cool for 20 minutes before removing from pan.

Makes about 10 to 12 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

A cold April the barn will fill.

When April blows his horn, it's good both for hay and corn.

When the wind is west, the fish bite best.

If the pig wallows in a puddle before the first of May, the summer will be cold.

OPINION

A Farmer Laughs At Himself

So I reckoned I'd got nearer to farming than any of my ancestors. At any rate none of them were farmers. They seemed to be sensible men and sensible men don't farm. It's the romantics who do, and those who can't help it because they're born into it. Sensible men work from nine until five and live in a warm house close to all amenities. They don't get wet through, or feel the frost grip their fingers, or work in the sun with sweat in their eyes, or lie awake listening to the storm. Farmers are made fools of by the Governments and Nature. They moan at the weather, groan at the prices, and grumble at the middle of man's profits while thinking up new ways to quieten the bank manager Yet they never believe there is any other worthwhile life. Sensible men can't understand this, save those who thrill to the sight of new grass in spring, an unlicked lamb, or a cow warm in a bed of straw in winter. — David Creaton, in The Beasts of My Fields, 1977.

Now Is The Time

To Free Mired Vehicles Safely

Getting vehicles unstuck can be dangerous. Accidents occur when tractors overturn, tow chains and cables break, unattended vehicles roll and crush people, and vehicles shift and trap people digging under them.

Distraction is one of the contributors to accidents. The tendency is to focus totally on getting the vehicle free rather than spotting potential safety problems.

Consider the following safety tips when freeing mired vehicles:

- Attach tow lines only to draw bars, trailer hitches, or tow eyes.
- Use tow cables with caution. They may break and snap wildly.
- Do not get between vehicles.
- Never use nylon ropes. They can break violently.

To Burn Trash Legally

Before burning trash, make sure you are following your local ordinances.

Many townships have adopted ordinances covering open burning of trash. Items covered in the ordinances include notifying the local fire company before burning, time of day you may burn, etc.

When burning trash, you need to minimize atmospheric pollutants. To eliminate pollutants emitted from a trash fire, complete combustion must be achieved.

It is difficult to achieve the necessary temperatures for complete combustion with a small trash fire. However, pollutants may be reduced by elevating the temperature.

To achieve the highest temperature, expose the trash to air, allowing the fire to burn hotter and more efficiently. This may be done by using grates to allow air to enter through the material. Also, agitating the material while burning will help to make sure all materials are incinerated.

Finally, be aware of weather conditions and what surrounds the trash pile. Strong breezes or wind could cause brush fires or catch neighboring buildings or equipment on fire.

To Control Cows Weight

According to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, cows will benefit from being placed on a weight control program. Cows that are too fat are unhealthy.

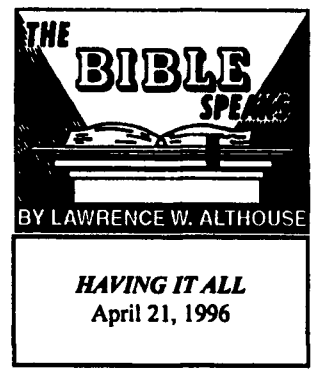
They have more calving difficulties, poorer immune responses to diseases and infections, their appetites are sluggish, and they are plagued with more metabolic problems, lower milk production, and poorer conception rates. Even though they have a lot of flesh at calving time, they actually lose more weight and become thinner than cows that calve with less flesh.

The goal is to have cows attain body condition score of about 3.5 to 3.75 at the time of dry off and calving. At those condition scores, they will have a thin layer of flesh covering their short ribs, hip bones, and the pin bones on either side of their tail head.

These cows calve with a small amount of energy reserves in the thin layer of flesh they are carrying. More importantly, they have more aggressive appetites. Because they consume more feed, they lose less flesh and have fewer metabolic problems.

Appetite and metabolic problems also are reduced if bred heifers and close-up dry cows are gradually introduced to higher levels of grain intake, starting about three weeks before calving. Also, use some of the same feeds they will be consuming after calving.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Transform the ordinary into the extraordinary."



HAVING IT ALL

April 21, 1996

Background Scripture:
John 10:1-30

Devotional Reading
John 10:31-42

The most popular goal in our society today seems to be that of finding a way to "have it all." This is just a new way of talking about an old ideal. People have always wanted to have a life that is rich, full, satisfying and complete. In the Gospel of John, Jesus says that "I come that they may have life, and have it abundantly" (10:10).

A footnote in my Oxford Annotated Bible says that "abundantly" means "beyond measure." Those of us who experienced the Great Depression remember when the goal for many of us was not abundance but survival, when life was a matter of getting enough, not more than enough. Whatever we had of material things could always be measured. I could tell you how many toys I had and recount them by name. The same was true of my clothes.

So, our age today is a much more affluent one—at least for some of us. There is a great amount of poverty today, but there is a tremendous amount of abundance as well. Many people today live in a constant state of superfluity—they always have more than they need. Our homes are filled with things: televisions, CD players, VCR's, computers, fax machines, copiers, and so much more.

EMPTINESS

Yet, although there is an abundance of things in our lives, many of us have never found the abundant life of which Jesus spoke. Acquisition has not made our lives any richer, fuller, more satisfying or more complete. In fact, very often in the midst of all this abundance, we feel a sense of emptiness that has gotten worse instead of better. Things, no matter how bright and shiny, do not fill that emptiness. The more we acquire, the less abundance we experience.

The English poet, Rudyard Kipling, spoke to the graduating class at McGill University, advising the graduates not to care too much for money, power, or fame. "Someday," he said, "you will meet a man who cares for none of these things...and then you will know how poor you are." When we look at Jesus Christ we realize how poor we are and how abundant and full his life was. His cup ran over, ours is always empty.

What really baffles us is that, having so little of material things and human success, what little he had he gave away. "I lay down my life," he tells us. "No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (10:17,18). What he had of life, he gave to us. And the secet of it all is that his giving never diminished what he had. Instead of acquiring things for himself, Jesus laid down his life willingly—not because he wanted to die, but because he wanted us to live life, "and have it abundantly."

I HAVE THE POWER

His free giving of himself, instead of diminishing him, gave him an ever greater fullness of life. It was in giving himself that he gained what acquisition could never give him. We get abundance by giving of what we have. If we try to hold on to it, regardless of how great or small, we will only lose it. Abundance of life is determined not by what we get, but what we give. Giving brings us more. Holding on to what we have only diminishes it.

All too often we tend to think of Christian discipleship as giving up something when we ought rather to be thinking of taking up something. But it is never a limitation or sacrifice that is imposed upon us. Jesus said that "No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord."

The only way we can be certain of having it all is to be willing also to give it all.

The Althouses will lead a group to the Holy Land, Oct.9 to Nov. 2, 1996. Space limited. For information, write them at 4412 Shenandoah Ave., Dallas, TX 75025.

McConnell, the daughter of John and Lois McConnell, is a senior at Wilmington Area High School. She is a nine-year member of the local 4-H cooking club for six years.

On Tour, FFA'ers Learn Valuable Lessons About Cooperatives

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NOTTINGHAM (Chester Co.) — A simple tour can turn into a big learning experience.

Lancaster County FFA members who toured the Herr's Snack Foods plant just inside the Chester County border Tuesday morning learned an important lesson about the value of cooperatives: take a raw product such as a potato, turn it into a potato chip, and see how its value grows.

And not just any potato chip: but a barbecued one, one that tastes like sour cream and onions, or tortillas. . . .

After the tour of the plant, FFA'ers were treated to some snacks before heading to the Herr Angus Farm.

"This tour illustrates the necessity of businesses to get closer to the consumer," said Dick Poorbaugh, Penn State Cooperative Education. Poorbaugh spoke to the 56 students and teachers from eight different FFA chapters in the county.

The tour, sponsored by the Lancaster County Cooperative Council, is part of the testing process to select youth from the county to attend the Cooperative Youth Institute scheduled the last week of June at Shippensburg.

Poorbaugh explained some of the purposes of the Penn State program and to share some lessons he has learned through the years in dealing with cooperatives.

The Penn State program trains the boards of directors of the different cooperatives to provide the skills, ideas, and knowledge to "lead cooperative organizations into the 21st century," he said.

The directives of the cooperatives have been to, in some cases, merge to gain more efficiency, markets, and access to foreign markets.

The tour, according to Poorbaugh, provides a good example of how raw commodities, such as potatoes, are processed and value is added to create a highly marketable product. Herr's Snack Foods sells to stores along the East Coast.

Importantly, two lessons can be learned from the experience, Poorbaugh told the FFA members. The first lesson is to think about "where you want to live and make the decisions today about where you want to be." The second was garnered from Poorbaugh's recent experience in touring Poland.

He said Poland doesn't have cooperatives such as the U.S. He told the future business leaders to "learn to appreciate" the benefits that U.S. cooperatives provide to us.

After the snack food plant tour, FFA members, teachers, and cooperative council members

On Tour, FFA'ers Learn Valuable Lessons

toured the Herr Angus Farm, which once served as a breed farm but now is strictly a commercial feedlot operation. The farm feeds by-products produced at the plant to the steers.

Rob Rohrer, herdsman for the 850-acre farm, said that normally the farm feeds to finish about 1,800 head per year, but is cutting back because of high feed prices and diminishing prices for beef. He said that a total mixed ration is fed to the steers in addition to two kinds of by-products, which he calls the "steer party mix," consisting of pretzels and chips. About 75 percent of the mix contains potato chips and the rest, pretzels.

About 25 percent of the diet for the steers is made up of the party mix, providing a high carbohydrate, high protein supplement. In addition, the steers are fed a urea protein supplement in addition to high moisture corn, silage, and haylage.

The calves are obtained from Virginia and Kentucky at 800-900 pounds and finished at 1,270-1,350 pounds. A larger percentage of the cattle are sold to Moyer Packing and Taylor packing, and a small percentage is sold for the freezer trade.

F.O.4 NFMS $1.19

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Adminstrator Rex. F. Lothrop today announced a producer nonfat milk solids price of $1.19 per pound for March 1996.

The weighted average differential base milk price was 93 cents per hundredweights and the price per pound or butterfat was 64.78 cents.

The producer NFMS price was up 11 cents from last year and the base differential increased 4 cents.

The standardized base milk price per hundredweight for producer milk with the market average nonfat milk solids content and 3.5 percent butterfat would have been $13.56 and the excess price would have been $12.63.

This represents a base price increase of 83 cents per hundredweight from the previous year. The excess price increased 79 cents from last March.

The nonfat milk solids price, applicable to handler payments, was $1.1946 per pound for the month, up 11.28 cents from last March. The weighted average price for March was $13.49 per hundredweight and would have been approximately 57 cents higher without the effect of the Class III-A price.

Mr. Lothrop said that producer receipts totaled 538.3 million pounds during March, a decrease of 32.8 million pounds from last March and the average daily delivery of 3,664 pounds per producer increased 41 pounds or 1.1 percent from a year earlier.

Total nonfat milk solids production for the month was 46.9 million pounds. This represents an average NFMS test of 8.71 percent, down from 8.80 percent last month.

Class I producer milk totaled 223.2 million pounds and was down 11.2 million pounds, or 4.8 percent from last March. Class I milk accounted for 41.45 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 41.03 percent in March 1995.

Base milk accounted for 88.41 percent of total producer milk receipts in March compared with 88.13 percent last year.

The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.81 percent, up from 3.70 percent last March.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 195.8 million pounds during March, a decrease of 2.5 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

In another partnership, Butch, with Mike Iager of Fulton, showed the reserve senior champion, the first place five-year-old C Maplebrough Revelation Kandy. The Revelation daughter had Best Udder in her class.

Judge for the show was Wayne Stiles of Westminster. A native Marylander, Wayne has been showing cattle since he was eight years old, and currently farms in the Spring Valley Farms partnership with his brother and mother in Silver Run.

Stiles named Lylehaven Ann Sweetheart, a four-year-old cow sired by Lylehaven JK Annapolis-ET, the reserve grand champion of the Spring show. The first place four-year-old in the open class also took best udder of her class, and is owned by Kelli Savage, Savage-Leigh Farm, Knoxville.

Cows from the Savage-Leigh herd had an outstanding day; taking home 7 champion and reserve champion rosettes altogether, and numerous first in class placings.

Kelli Savage also showed the senior champion in the junior show, which went on to take grand champion in the junior show, her first place aged cow, Lylehaven Jet Denise. Denise was the overall production winner at the show. She also won the 100,000 pounds of milk class in the junior and open shows, and was total performance winner and best udder winner in the junior show.

Reserve grand champion in the junior show and reserve senior champion in the junior division were awarded to Ladys-Manor Vanna Dee-ET, a Harold Smith, III entry which won best udder in the 100,000 pounds of milk class.

Chip Savage showed the top fall yearling Savage-Leigh Lead Chrissy to junior champion in the junior show. Chrissy also took junior champion in the open show.

Jami Savage had the reserve intermediate champion in the junior show, Savage-Leigh Skybuck Ashley. Ashley was the top senior two-year-old.

Amy Iager of Fulton had her share of the spotlight, taking home three winning rosettes.

In the junior show, Amy Iager showed the intermediate champion, the junior three-year-old junior and open class winner How El Acres Lee Ruffle.

Amy Iager also had the reserve junior champion in the junior show, Tri-Day Jenny Jones, a summer yearling.

That summer yearling was also the reserve junior champion in the open show for Miss Iager.

Reserve intermediate champion in the open class went to Peace and Plenty Farm, Union Bridge, for the senior three-year-old cow Peace and Plenty Counselor Tonia-ET.

Other results of the show are as follows:

TREE FRUIT

The following information on fruit is from the entomology section of the April Fruit Times Newsletter:

• Rosy Apple Aphid Profile: Rosy apple aphids are the most injurious of the aphid species infesting apple, causing leaf, fruit, and systematic root damage. The shiny black overwintering eggs begin to hatch at silver tip on apple and complete hatch by ½ -inch green. The nymphs move to feed on the newly opening buds, and as the leaves expand, work their way into the clusters where they feed on the stems and developing fruit. Feeding produces a tight curling of the leaves that provides a protected site for the nymphs. By pink, these nymphs begin to develop into stem mothers, each capable of producing as many as 185 live young. Adult and nymph feeding produces saliva that can translocate from the leaves to the fruit, resulting in deformed, unmarketable fruit. Three generations develop on apple and then the aphids fly to narrow leaf plantain to complete an additional six generations in the summer before flying back to apple to lay the overwintering eggs.

Optimum timing for an insecticide application occurs at ½ -inch green, when most of the eggs have hatched, yet before the aphids curl the leaves and become difficult to contact with an insecticide. Insecticides can include various organophosphates or pyrethroids as specified in the 1996-1997 Tree Fruit Production Guide.

If a pyrethroid is chosen, it may be advisable not to make the application after the ½ -inch green stage for the concern of flaring mites later in the season. In addition, pyrethroids are not very effective against scale and they tend to be detrimental to predators which may keep scale in control naturally. Pyrethroids, however, are the most effective materials available for rosy apple aphids and also are highly active against tarnished plant bugs.

Various insecticides have been investigated for control of rosy apple aphid at the Fruit Research and Extension Center in Biglerville over the past several years. All materials were applied complete, airblast at 100 GPA. The performance of Lorsban 4E (1 to 1.5 quart per acre) at ½ -inch green both with and without SunSpray 6E Oil (4 gallons per acre) has been mixed. In years with low pressure, Lorsban has provided adequate control. However, in 1991 and 1994, under high pressure, use of Lorsban did not reduce the incidence of injured clusters compared with the untreated control. Asana XL applied at 4 fluid ounces at ½ -inch green has provided excellent control even under high pressure. Supracide (1.5 quart per acre) at ½ -inch green and Vydate (1 quart per acre) at pink have provided intermediate levels of control.

Natural Enemy Note: Cool, wet springs are often optimum for aphid development and survival. One factor of increased survival may be less activity of aphid natural enemies.

Spray Solution pH: Is the neutral pH of 7 optimum for your spray solution? Not necessarily. Most pesticides work best when applied in a solution in the range of pH 4-6. Alkaline conditions, or pH greater than 7, causes the hydrolysis of pesticides. Once the pesticide is hydrolyzed, it is no longer effective. The half-life of a pesticide in solution is the amount of time it takes until half of the product is broken down. For example, chlorpyrifos (Lorsban) has a half-life in solution of 35 days at pH of 7, but only 1.5 days at pH of 8. Carbaryl (Sevin) has a half-life of 100-150 days at pH 6, 24-30 days at pH 7, 2-3 days at pH 8, and 1 day at pH 9. Labels warning against mixing a pesticide with an alkaline material generally indicate that the product will break down quickly in the spray tank, and possibly on the leaf surface, if the pH is too high.

Know the pH of the water you use to spray with and of the common spray solutions to determine whether any adjustment of pH is necessary to prevent alkaline hydrolysis. To save time, you may test the pH of common spray mixtures in a bottle at the beginning of the season. See your chemical dealer concerning testing kits and acidifiers or buffers that can be added to the tank to reduce the pH. Read the labels; some pesticides should never be acidified, including lime or lime sulfur and fixed copper fungicides.

New Methods Of Weed Control

While catching up on my reading recently, I came upon two separate articles discussing new methods of weed control. Both systems are still being refined at this time, but I believe that we will be hearing more about them in the future.

The first discussed the use of steam to burn down weeds while the second used optical sensors for sprayer control. Both of these methods are "environmentally friendly" and while you all are probably tired of hearing this term, I can't help but think we are going to continue to move in this direction with all of our farming operations. But rather than preach here, I'll discuss these systems in more detail.

The steam system was developed by a company in Minnesota originally for use in citrus groves. However, changes have been made to the equipment to make it smaller and experimentation is under way in orchards. A diesel-fired heat exchanger and water tank are pulled behind a tractor on a trailer. Water is heated to boiling and sprayed at low pressure from nozzles mounted close to the soil. A rubberized heavy tarp is pulled just behind the nozzles to seal in the heat for a few seconds — long enough to kill any vegetation hit by the water. Plant material hit by the water dies within one to two days. Growers who have used the system say it is as effective as a burn-down herbicide.

There are several problems with the current system. First is the high price — about $16,000 for the unit currently being tested. Another problem is that the area between trees is not treated. And finally, the cost of heating the water is comparable to treating with a chemical but the cost of constantly refilling the small water tank (400 gallons)

100,000 Pound Milk Cow Wins Red And White Show

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — The crowd at Cow Palace in Timonium saw red last week. Red and white, that is, as approximately 100 entries in the International Spring Red and White Show paraded through the show ring. The show was held on Thursday, with entries from the U.S. and Canada vying for top honors. Judging the show was Dave Castrogiovanni, from Montrose, Susquehanna County, PA.

The senior champion female won grand champion, and was also awarded best udder in the Show. C Kingsmeadow April-Red, a Glenafton Enhancer daughter almost eight years old, was the top entry in the 100,000 Lbs. of Milk, lifetime class. She also won best bred and owned in her class. "She has a phenomenal udder; she's a super dairy cow with a great set of feet and legs," commented Judge Castrogiovanni. "For her to be giving as much milk as she is obviously giving, and still have an udder like that, she really deserves to win." The cow belongs to Jack and Vickie Smith of Warfordsburg, Fulton County, PA, and is milking over 100 pounds a day at the Smith's Medovue Farm. She placed third at the grand international show in Madison, was grand champion at the Bedford County show and reserve supreme at the Bedford County show, and was nominated All American in 1995.

The Kings also showed the junior best three females, all out of the same cow family; they were great-granddaughters of Skyhi Mars Helen.

Winning the reserve champion female and reserve senior champion titles was the top four-year-old cow, Ja-Bob BG Heidi-Red-ET, sired by Deslacs Boy George-Red-Twin*BR. She is owned by S. Tucker Johnson, Cedar Lane Farm, Oldwick, NJ. Johnson's herd is the famous Milk and Honey herd of the 1950s, '60s, and '70s, built up by his grandfather, J. Seward Johnson.

The intermediate champion female was also the best bred and owned of the show, Derrwyn Concord Twizler-Red, owned by Gary and Brenda Derr, Derrwyn Farm, of New Windsor, MD. The Wine Ridge Concord daughter was the top senior three-year-old. She also took best bred and owned and best udder in her class.

Reserve intermediate champion went to another three-year-old, Aaron Lee Ranger Vicky-Red, a Horizon Ranger-ET-Red daughter owned by Aaron Lee Farms, Breslau, Ontario. The junior three-year-old winner also took best udder and bred and owned in her class.

A pair of calves shown by Jami Leigh Savage, daughter of Wayne and Cindee Savage, Savage-Leigh Farm, Knoxville, MD, took home the junior champion and reserve junior champion rosettes. Her fall heifer calf, Savage-Leigh Passion-Red, sired by Reknown Factor-ET, was the junior champion female. The calf's granddam is a very good Inspiration. She was All Maryland intermediate calf and All Maryland intermediate yearling. Savage-Leigh Nox Chris-Red, a Burket-Falls No-Nox-Red-ET daughter, was top Summer Yearling Heifer and went on to win reserve junior champion.

Brad Beckwith Dean, son of Charles Thomas Dean, Jr. and Cheryl Meakins, of Ridgely, MD, had the winning male. His December bull calf, Brooknook Milestone-ET-Red, was unopposed in the junior bull calf class, and went on to win champion male of the show.

Showmanship awards were awarded to youth before the Red and White Show began. In the age 9 and under category, first place went to seven-year-old Robert Uebler, who was challenged by his six-year-old sister Shannon. Shannon came in second. The Uebler are the children of Gene and Joanne Uebler, West Winfield, NY. In the 9- to 13-year-old class, winners were: 1. Cindi Mearkle, Everett, PA; 2. Jenny Miller, Whitehall, MD; 3. Paul Kobler II, Vernon, NY. The Senior Youth winners were: 1. Angie Morse, Clearspring, MD; 2. Mark Iager, Fulton, MD; and 3. Christina Kobler, Vernon, NY.

Pa.DHIA Offers Same-Day Reports

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

Modern technology continues to play a major part in today's dairy industry.

The advent of the laptop computer has revolutionized dairy record analysis to even greater heights. Not only does the Pa. DHIA technician have the ability to enter basic herd information into the laptop computer, but the technician now has the ability to create reports on test day.

At Pa. DHIA, we feel that having this information available in such a timely fashion, will create yet another way the dairymen can use our service to better manage their herds.

Currently the Pa. DHIA technicians enter herd data into the Quick Barn Sheet Program. After data collection is complete, the date collected will then be transferred or updated to the Westfalia Dairy Plan program.

The Westfalia Dairy Plan program processes milk, breed, herd health and veterinary information for daily managment and decision making. Dairy Plan gives you the information you need, just the way you want it by creating your own reports or by using the several reports that come with the system.

Ask your Pa. DHIA technician to present to you some examples of the Westfalia Dairy Plan reports today.

Virtually you have the ability to have enough information left at your farm on test day to make strong financial decisions.

Feel free to call Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 if we can assist you in your dairy operation.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK™

Bigelow Addresses Goat Products Conference

David Bigelow, training coordinator at Pa. DHIA, addressed the 1996 American Dairy Goat Products Association spring regional conference.

The conference was held on March 30 at the Penn State Agriculture Science and Industry Building at State College. The theme of his presentation was "Should I or shouldn't I test?"

Producing quality dairy goat milk has become more of an industry in the last few years. This has brought increased needs for accurate production and management information.

Through the presentation, it was stressed that there are different options for types of testing plans and programs. Herd management information such as production, feeding, health, reproduction and genetic evaluations can be provided by Pa. DHIA.

Currently, Pa. DHIA services members in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, and Missouri. Please feel free to contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800- DHI-TEST if we can assist in your dairy operation.

Jennifer Kellerman, of Centre Hall purchased the top seller. The June 1995 born Four Springs Pistol Bettina, was consigned by J. Craig and Susan Wicker, of Centre Hall. Kellerman bid $885 on the Comfort Prize Pistol-ET daughter.

The second highest seller in the Pot-of-Gold sale was purchased by Johann Wester, of Jamestown. Wester paid $650 for Wilderness Lester Fancy, consigned by Robert and Helene Dreisbach, of Hamburg. The Highland Duncan Lester daughter was born in September, 1995.

Five hundred and fifty dollars was the price of the third high seller, Stony Hollow Lester Skye, consigned by Stonerook Farm, of Martinsburg. Amy Jo Hixson, of Scottdale, purchased the Highland Duncan Lester daughter, born in August, 1995.

Pot-of-Gold animals must be purchased by junior members. After the animals complete their first lactations, production records are evaluated and the owners of the top three high producers receive recognition and monetary awards. Twenty five percent of the money from the sale of the Pot-of-Gold animals is awarded to winners.

Food Safety Forum To Develop Educational Programs

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A group of about 100 people from all segments of Pennsylvania's food industry, convened here Wednesday at a Food Safety Forum sponsored by Pennsylvania State University.

The objective was to develop sector-based educational criteria and a plan to ensure a safe food supply in Pennsylvania communities.

Representatives from production, processing, retailing, food service and consumers were present in working sessions to assess the strengths and weaknesses of the present system. The report of the findings of these groups was to form the basis for develompent of a plan of action to improve the system through education.

In the keynote address, Richard Barnes, director, federal-state relations of the Food and Drug Adminstration, said the basic problem is that we have little or no communication within the food system. In fact he said we really have no system because there is no communication among the segments.

While Barnes asserted that we have the safest food supply it must get better. To accomplish this, a partnership must be formed where each segment cooperates and everyone is responsible for education or as an inspector, regulator, enforcer, advocate, and consumer. He said that even though we have been inspecting and regulating for 80 years no one is still 100 percent safe.

"Everyone has ownership of the system and each of the partners must work to show respect for each of the other partners," Barnes said. "The strength of the partnership is communication between government, industry, and academia."

Speaking for production, David Kradel, Pennsylvania Poultry

Put Aside Worries For Night Of Fun

• Communication. The Federation keeps the industry informed through the Poultry Post newsletter. Also, the Federation sponsors the Northeast Poultry Show, held at the Lancaster Host Convention Center; the Poultry Progress Day, held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center; and other meetings.

• Industry savings and protection. The worker's compensation program and medical insurance programs have saved the industry millions of dollars every year. Also, the Federation is involved in government relations, youth programs, turkey and broiler checkoff funds, scholarships, and other efforts.

They Federation operates two checkoff programs, including one for broilers and another for the turkey industry. These are all volunteer programs to fund industry research.

Hoffman said the industry is looking at an egg checkoff program, also voluntary, which would deduct 10 cents per ton of feed. If implemented, the fund would provide money for the new poultry research center at Penn State.

In addition, the Federation provides five $1,000 scholarships to Penn State students.

For those who are worried about where the industry is headed — with grain prices "highest in history," according to Hoffman — the night out could spell some welcome relief.

Tickets are $125 each. For more information, contact John Hoffman at the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, 500 N. Progress Avenue, Harrisburg, PA 17109, (717) 652-7530.

Beef Council

the issue in a balanced and unalarming manner.

Meetings have also been scheduled with every major retailer in the state to provide science-based information on BSE, as well as to encourage aggressive summer featuring. The Beef Council office has continued to respond on a daily basis to the numerous consumer and media inquiries.

The television advertising schedule for the national beef industry campaign has been checked, and any beef ads scheduled to appear around the Oprah show were pulled and rescheduled. An "issue advertisement" which presents the facts about BSE and about the safety of American beef is being developed for publication in major consumer influencer publications such as The Washington Post, New York Times, and USA Today.

Ivan said that despite the biased attacks from the media, consumers remain confident of the safety and wholesomeness of American beef. In a survey conducted by the industry this past weekend, 61 percent of the Americans said their families planned to cook out on the grill over next month's Memorial Day weekend.

When asked what type of meat they planned to cook, 75 percent said beef. Last year, in response to the same question, 73 percent of consumers said beef, and in 1994 only 61 percent said beef.

"We're encouraged by these survey results, but we have no intention of letting-up on our aggressive informational campaign," said Ivan. "The Beef Council Board and staff are acutely aware of the frustration and anxiety felt by producers with depressed cattle prices, high grain prices, and lingering misinformation about BSE, and we are committed to doing whatever is necessary to help the situation."

Tribute To Eckel Highlights Banquet

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — A tribute to Keith Eckel, a Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) leader for 22 years, will highlight the 16th Annual statewide FARMER Banquet on Monday, April 29 in Hershey.

Eckel, president of PFB since 1981, has announced his intention to retire from office on April 4. He has been nominated to serve on the board of directors of the Nationwide Insurance Enterprise.

"Keith has been a Farm Bureau leader for over two decades, first as a state board member, and then as president of the organization and a member of the American Farm Bureau board of directors," said FARMER chairman Ed Hartman. "He has traveled a million miles, visited every county and spent countless hours and days away from the family farm in Lackawanna County to pursue Farm Bureau's goals. To show our appreciation, we have invited several distinguished guests to the banquet to reminisce about their experiences with Keith and his accomplishments as a Farm Bureau leader and to wish him well in his new role at Nationwide.

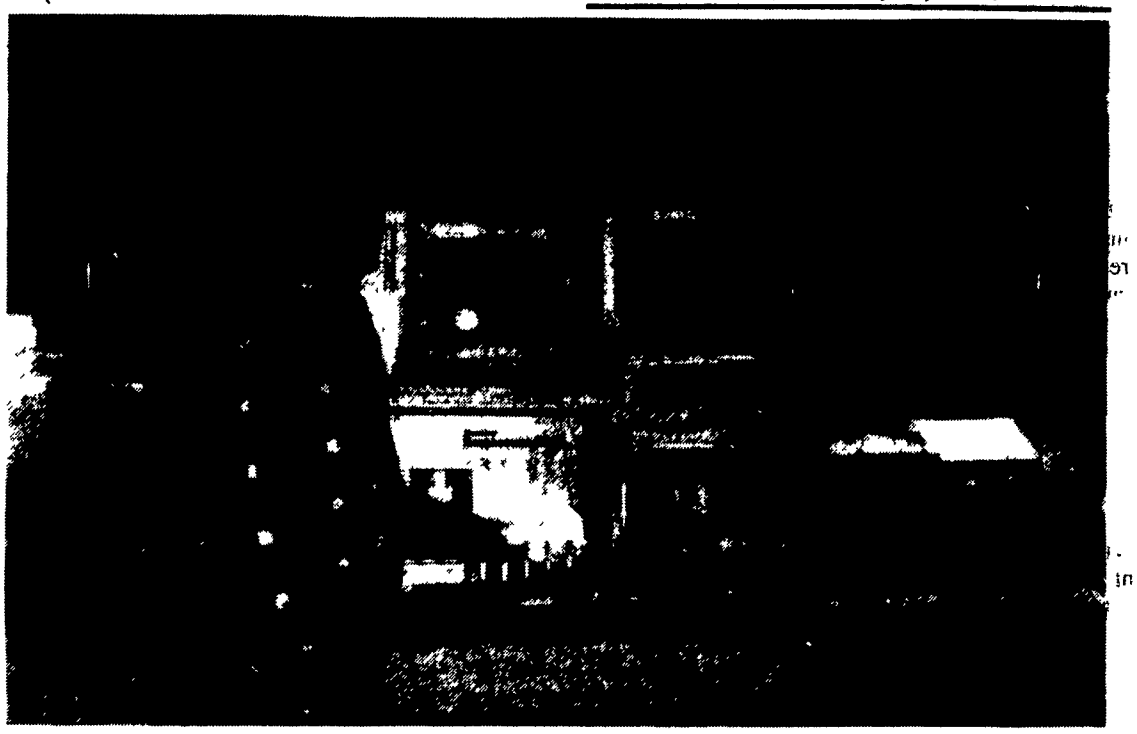
Keith Eckel

"We're encouraging members representing every county to be present for this 'Farewell To Keith'. It promises to be a memorable evening."

The FARMER banquet will be held at the Hotel Hershey, beginning with a reception at 5:30 p.m. and dinner at 6:30 p.m. The cost of the banquet is $125 per person, or $175 including spouse. The banquet is open to Farm Bureau members and non-members.

To order tickets, send a personal check payable to "FARMER" to Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Governmental Relations Division, P.O. Box 8736, Camp Hill, PA 17001-8736. The ticket order deadline is Monday, April 15.

FARMER is PFB's bi-partisan political action committee.



Lancaster DHIA Lab Manager Jere High shows computer equipment which runs quick, accurate tests on milk from over 1,250 dairy farms in Lancaster and surrounding counties. The equipment is just one of the factors that helped Lancaster receive a 100 percent rating on the National Quality Certification Evaluation.

Lancaster DHIA Lab Receives Top Grade

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster DHIA Lab received a 11 percent rating for the second year in a row on the National Quality Certification Evaluation conducted annually by the National DHIA.

"Our hard work and determination to do the best we can to run a quality lab was given a stamp of approval with the 100 percent rating," said Lancaster DHIA Lab Manager Jere High.

National DHIA Certifier J. Paul Sauve spent several hours evaluating the status of the Lancaster DHIA laboratory. The process is divided into 11 different areas including assessing all routine methods, policies and procedures; making sure all forms and reports are utilized; examining details of staff training and qualifications; going over quality control methods; and comparing data to previous evaluations.

Lancaster DHIA standards are controlled by National DHIA. The average Certification Evaluation score is between 88 and 90 percent, according to Sauve.

"I would like to give a special thanks to our lab technicians, Tracy Bollinger, Peggy Randolph and Michelle Wetzel who helped make this all possible," High said. "We look forward to the challenges of providing quality service."

Lancaster DHIA, a non-profit organization operated by a board of directors, continues to test over 1,250 herds in Lancaster and surrounding counties and maintains a two-day turnaround time for all Lancaster DHIA customers. For more information call (717) 665-5960.

Farm Bill Creates Uncertainty And New Playing Field

The waiver will deny producers the right to apply for any disaster assistance, including disaster loans."

Several other organizations made similar statements about the crop insurance provisions of the new Farm Bill.

Otherwise, opinions of the bill expressed by various organizations reflect different interests.

In forming the year-late legislation a battle of political philosophies emerged.

On one extreme there were those calling for pure capitalism to rule national food policy, and on the other, those desiring to maintain the lowest priced (and safest) food in the world through government program-encouraged over-production and market price control mechanisms.

The discussions have ongoing for years, with attempts for a unified position from the different producer segments failing for the most part.

As a result, producers and processors battled over provisions while large commercial operations and smaller, independent producers battled over differing goals.

Cooperatives merged in the meantime to position themselves as competitive organizations to emerging international corporate producer organizations.

The promise of global opportunities for marketing United States' agricultural product have begun to be realized, though trading partners' domestic laws on labor, safety and practice along with currency differences have stalled some attempts by U.S. exporters to conduct business without being confronted by protectionist hurdles.

Additionally, for the past decade, non-agricultural interests have been influencing public opinion and legislative representatives in an attempt to change national farm legislation to further their own fringe-related goals.

(Some individuals have been creating different anti-ag organizations during the course of a year and conducting business that has appeared very monetarily self-serving.)

Some of these groups promote vegetarianism, anti-animal use, and other psuedoscientific alternatives to scientifically recommended dietary and nutritional guidelines.

Other groups that became more interested in national farm legislation have been groups concerned with environmental integrity.

However, these groups also range in extreme.

There are those that have or continue to use forms of terrorism and martyrism to further non-science-supported beliefs about food safety, agriculture and the role of the humans in the food chain.

At the other end, there are environmental groups with credible and documentable desires to protect the integrity of natural resources for continued generations to enjoy and live in good health.

The indecisiveness of the U.S. agriculture industry and the influence of non-agricultural interests resulted in partisan positioning and a compromise package of legislation — the U.S. Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives both passed versions and a conference committee comprised of members from both legislative bodies worked out details which then were approved and signed into law by President Bill Clinton.

USDA Sets Farm Bill Public Hearing

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A public educational meeting and hearing to gather testimony on implementing the conservation provisions of the 1996 Farm Bill has been set for Monday, April 22, at the Sheraton Berkshire Hotel in Wyomissing, Berks County.

While the specifics of which officials representing the federal government are to be present weren't available by presstime, it was announced that people representing natural resources and environmental agencies and organization from 12 Northeastern states and Washington D.C. will be present to listen to testimony.

Immediately following, speakers who signed up are to begin discussing conservation subjects with a 5-minute limit.

After lunch, speakers are to continue until a scheduled end at 4 p.m., although the meeting may last longer, depending on the number of speakers.

There are 15 subjects outlined for discussion.

Of the new conservation provisions included in the Farm Bill are a Environmental Quality Incentives Program; Farmland Protection Program; Flood Risk Reduction Program; Conservation Farm Option; Conservation of Private Grazing Land Initiative; National Natural Resources Conservation Foundation; and a Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program.

Those programs that had been in existance, but were changed, modified or amended under the 1996 Farm Bill include the swampbuster and wetlands provisions; conservation compliance; the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP); the Emergency Watershed Protection Program; State Technical Committees; Wetlands Memorandum of Agreement; and the Wetlands Reserve Program.

Also to be discussed is the availability of farmers to be more flexible in planting.

Contact a local NRCS office for more information.

According to a news advisory from the state office of the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, the reason for the hearing is, "To gather ideas on ways to implement the conservation provisions of the Farm Bill that will help the (USDA) write guidelines for programs listed in the conservation provision of the 1996 Farm Bill, also known as the Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act of 1996.

"Oral and written testimony will be gathered."

The Sheraton Berkshire Hotel is located at 1741 Paper Mill Road, in Wyomissing, not far from Reading.

It is expected that the meeting is to start at 8:30 a.m. with registration and sign-nup of those who intend to speak and provide testimony.

At 9 a.m., a welcome, introduction of a panel of officials to hear testimony, and a briefing of the conservation provisions of the Farm Bill along with slides and a question and answer session is planned.

Farm Bill Creates Uncertainty And New Playing Field

received this week from Pennsylvania State University College of Agricultural Sciences, "The conference agreement on the seven-year farm bill would spend about $47 billion on farm programs, with additional money going to nutrition, insurance and other programs.

"As in both versions of the legislation, the conference report would replace traditional farm subsidies with a system of fixed, declining payments, while scaling back some provisions in the sugar and peanut price-support programs."

On April 4, President Bill Clinton signed the 1996 Farm Bill.

U.S. Senator Richard Lugar of Indiana, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, in a news release praised the new Farm Bill.

"From now on, the federal government will stop trying to control how much food, feed and fiber our nation produces. Instead, we will begin to trust the market."

In the release, he claimed that work on the bill (was supposed to the 1995 Farm Bill) only started in January of 1995 when Republicans took control of the U.S. Congress and he took over the Senate Ag Committee.

However, work on forming national farm policy had obviously begun prior to that.

In fact, pressure from the farming sector to remove government interference from the marketplace has been ongoing, as it became apparent that much of the pressure to produce more at lower cost resulted not from need to supply demand, but from federal food policy to ensure low-cost food for Americans.

Members of the farm community have long criticized alleged surplus production purchased by the government as merely a tool to maintain federal welfare programs, such as school lunches (cheaper market prices means less government outlay to buy "surplus" food to support government food give-aways).

Locally, some in the farm community have recently expressed some excitement about the possibility of receiving farm prices that cover more than cost of production.

In general that excitement seems to come from the perception that without the federal government unloading pre-purchased "surplus" onto the open market when demand increases (and thereby maintaining low market prices), that estimates on plantings and placings can be used to better determine risk and profit potential in producing a given commodity.

Further pressaging the new farm policy were key international trade agreements in which domestic agricultural trade policies became instrumental — many nations have used protectionism to ensure adequate domestic food production (it serves to ensure self-reliance in times of national security risk, as well as helping to preserve historic cultural practices.)

The passage of the long-overdue General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and the free trade agreement between Canada, United States and Mexico — the North American Free Trade Agreement — actually served to provide even more impetus to deregulate the United States agriculture industry.

In his news release, Sen. Lugar stated, "The important thing about this bill is the unleashing of American agriculture to make more money. Net income for American farmers will increase, generating dynamic economic renewal in rural America. Significant additional income will come into people's pockets, and likewise back to the federal government, state and local governments through tax revenues.

"This reform comes at a time when we are experiencing a significant increase in global demand for American farm products. After 60 years, we are changing laws to allow farmers to produce for world markets at the exact time the markets are booming. American farmers will be free to produce for these demands."

The National Grange issued statements of support, as did the National Farm Bureau, and the American Soybean Association (ASA).

ASA President John Long, of Newberry, S.C., stated in the news release, "The Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform (FAIR as the Farm Bill is now called) Act of 1996 ... will substantially benefit U.S. soybean producers in competing for domestic acres and foreign markets."

David Erickson, the ASA first vice president, stated, "The soybean loan for 1996-2002 crops will have a floor of $4.92 per bushel (the rate for 1995) and a cap of $5.26 per bushel.

"The support level will initially go up to $4.98 per bushel for 1996 and could reach the top level ... for the 1997 crop if soybean prices this year average above $6.57 per bushel.

"We're please Congress recognized the need to have an equitable loan rate in comparison with other major crops."

For dairy, a Penn State summary states that, "To spur exports, the bill would phase out price supports for butter, powder and cheese over four years, rather than the five-year phaseout .... Beginning in 2000, the bill would create a loan program for those products.

"The Agriculture Department would be required to consolidate the 33 milk marketing orders ... to 10 to 14 orders within three years. Producer assessments would be terminated immediately.

"The bill would the Agriculture secretary to authorize a Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact for up to three years, under which the six New England states could temporarily increase the minimum price that processors would pay fluid milk producers."

As far as federal crop loans and subsidies, "The plan would reduce the approximately $36 billion in seven-year fixed payments by about $200 million," according to the Penn State summary, which also contained the same information about soybean support expressed in the news release from the ASA.

Though probably not affecting many Lancaster Farming readers, "Rice subsidy formulas would be set at about $50 million less than the SEnate version, which would be approximately $250 million more than the House version."

It also states, "The Agriculture Department could reduce wheat and feed grain loans in outlying regions to no more than 5-percent less than the national average."

In other areas of the Farm Bill, the Food Stamp program was reauthorized for two years without change, and other nutrition program were authorized for seven years.

A rural development program in the bill establishes $300 million for a "Fund for Rural America" with money split between research and rural development.

The market promotion program was renamed the "Market Access Program" and caps funding to promote U.S. agriculture overseas at $90 million per year and direct those efforts toward small companies.

The outlook for the effect of the new farm legislation from Ohio State University Extension agricultural economists is that in the short term it will mean more money for producers, though they are uncertain about its longer term effects.

"Short term, it's a really good deal for farmers in that they're going to get much more in payments this way than they would have out of a continuation of the '90 farm bill," Luther Tweeten, an Ohio State University ag economist stated in the news release.

According to the release, during the seven-year transition to a subsidy phase-out, farmers enrolled will get fixed payments based on historic production and participation, regardless of what they now produce.

"People are divided on thinking this is a farce versus a buyout," Tweeten stated. "If it's a farce, we're giving farmers payments for doing nothing. But if it's a buyout, then we can look at the payments as a compensation, just as a university or company compensates employees in a buyout for leaving early."

Another Ohio University economist, Carl Zulauf, stated in the release that small farmers seem excluded by the new policy.

"There's no mention of rural life or small farms," he stated. "This is a bill for commercial agriculture."

Farm Bill Planning

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued a guide for deadlines associated with the new Farm Bill.

According to a news release, "USDA 1996 Farm Bill Almanac," the secretary of agriculture by April 18 was to announce a "... two-to four-week window during which producers may obtain catastrophic crop insurance coverage for a spring-planted crop."

That has been done. The deadline for signup has been set for May 2 and producers should take heed that those who do not signup for minimum crop coverage will not be eligible to get it for seven years.

The insurance policies become effective 10 days after application.

By late April, the USDA is to mail initial 1996 peanut program quotas to operators and notify them and owners about out-of-county transfer provisions and how to implement transfer limitations.

By early May, the Farm Service Agency (FSA) is to provide farm base and yield notices to producers to be used as a basis for computing commodity payments under the Farm Bill.

By May 1, dairy marketing assessments end. The USDA is to make refunds for 1995 and 1996 years at some later time.

Sometime from late May to mid-July, the USDA is to begin signup for producers to enroll farms and sign production flexibility contracts. (Advance 1996 payments will be made 30 days after FSA approves the contracts.)

August 1 is the deadline for signup and no one is allowed to signup afterward for seven years, except for those with expiring Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) contracts.

For peanut farmers, by early fall, the USDA plans to allocate a temporary seed quota.

Final 1996 payments to producers is to be made by Sept. 30.

Either by Dec. 15, 1996, or Jan. 15, 1997, 1997 crop advance payments made be made at the option of the producer.

These dates are guidelines issued by the USDA and subject to change and finalization. Notices and media advisories are expected to be issued by the USDA giving specific dates and deadlines as the year progresses.

For more information on timetables and the Farm Bill, contact a local FSA.

Moo Kooler Introduced At Allied Milk Banquet

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Coorespondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) — Moo Kooler, a branded milk product formulated exclusively for kids and targeted to compete with other kids beverages, got the approval of some 220 guests at the Allied Milk Producer's annual banquet, when a gift of the new dairy beverage was given to each one.

While they eyed the bottle of creamy, colored liquid sealed by a twist-off cap on a recyclable plastic bottle, Don Schriver, C.E.O. of Milk Marketing introduced them to the low-fat milk drink that comes in four interesting flavors—VanillaZilla, ChocoKool, ChocoBoom, and OrangeSlide.

Schriver told how Moo Kooler is the first branded milk beverage to be developed and marketed with the help of dairy farmer assessment funds and about its unique collaboration of a non-profit, farmer-run organization, ADADC Mid East and a private dairy farmer-owned cooperative, Milk Marketing Inc.

He drew attention to the packaging. Moo Kooler bottles suit people on the go and fit into beverage holders in cars.

The product with its fun-loving, sunglass-wearing Holstein cow on the label is currently being promoted in television commercials in the four marketing areas of Cleveland, Akron/Canton, Columbus and Pittsburgh, Schriver said.

Ginny Lunko, a fifthgrade teacher in the Roxbury School, who took advantage of the "Ag in the Classroom" opportunity at Penn State, was introduced by Carol Gregg, Agriculture Awareness Foundation coordinator.

As a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., Lunko spoke about her youthful ignorance regarding the origins of food. At Penn State her experience was enlightening and opened a world of endless teaching possibilities.

A study in the Chesapeake Bay's ecosystem is an example. Her 55 kids were divided into the five affected groups — dairymen, watermen, land developers and so forth, then they held a town meeting to discuss the issues.

They learned to: "Experience the natural world up close. I tell my students to 'think globally and act locally,'" Lunko said.

Joel Rose, president of the board of directors, gave the director's report. Dorothy Naugle, dairy marketing specialist gave a report of the year's activities.

Radio promotions over 12 area stations carry dairy messages all year long, Naugle said. Their messages are about good health, calcium, wise food choices and the REAL Seal. These are the biggest budget item followed by billboards.

Other directors are Fred Shankle, vice president; Lowell Friedline, secretary; Janice Itle, treasurer; Robert Beatty, Dave Myers and Marvin Thomas.

Shankle presented each dairy princess with a check for $200 to bring to $500 the total allowance for necessities they encounter during their yearlong appearances.

Jan Harding of the state dairy princess program accompanied the young women.

Andy Lasky, a local radio personality, served as master of ceremonies.

Pennsylvania state dairy princess, Rhonda Kieklak from Erie County, joined five county dairy princesses attending the affair. They helped auctioneer, Merle Mishler, during Allied first-ever, after dinner, auction.

The young women were Amy Paul, Somerset County; Amy Trimble, Indiana County; Rachel Goodheart,Armstrong County; Jennifer Brumbaugh, Bedford County; and Marie Lieb, Cambria County. Gretchen Yaple, Clearfield; Becky Krise, Jefferson and Rebecca Kiejka, Westmoreland were unable to attend.

When they agreed to hold an auction, Allied's top guns turned everything over to the seasoned Mishler who possesses the bidder instinct and a quicksilver tongue that throws out numerical scales in reverse and high gear.

Mishler's "cause" in this case was the dairy princess programs in Allied nine-counties that are feeling the pinch reduced state funding in their local promotions. Judging by the laughter, the auction was fun as well as successful.

Well over $1,300 was raised by reselling various items like the marble roller that kept losing its shiny orbs when Bedford's Brumbaugh did her best to deliver it through the crowd to its first new owner.

Bringing top money was the Winross collecter truck bought for $1,310 by Wil Young, C.E.O. of Sani-Dairy. Some 800 of the trucks were commissioned to be built in celebration of the 40th anniversary of the dairy princess program.

The top price of $1,310 at the benefit sale was for the Winross truck that celebrates the 40th anniversary of the dairy princess program. Wil Young, Sani-Dairy CEO collects his purchase from Rhonda Kieklak, state dairy princess.

Food Safety Forum

Association, said agriculture in the U.S. should be recognized for what it has accomplished in presenting to the consumer the variety and quality of foods that are the safest in the world and the most reasonably priced. Producers have aggressively attempted to reduce ecologically normal but potentially harmful food-borne bacteria in the production environment.

Thomas Cope, president, John Cope's Food Products, Inc., Rheems, spoke on the panel for the processing segment of the industry. Cope said one of the problems that the frozen food industry faces is the abuse by the users of products. In the past, children were trained by their parents how to preserve and prepare foods for home storage and consumption. Today, many people don't understand the risks associated with improper handling of food.

Barry Morrison, Genuardi Family Markets, Philadelphia, was the representative for the retail segment. Morrison said employees who are trained in food safety can help raise the quality of the operation. The employees who follow good safety procedures also help keep their customers safe. He noted that managers must lead by example and you can't ask your employees to do one thing while you do the opposite just because you are the boss.

LeRoy Corbin, Jr., PDA, gave an overview of the department's food safety programs that include the divisions of milk sanitation; food control; fruits, vegetables, and egg inspection; and laboratories. Corbin said food safety is ensured through routine inspections, enforcement actions, training of food handlers, and frequent communications with the food industry.

Michael Diskin, Allegheny County Health Department, Pittsburgh, presented ideas for a team approach to seeking solutions. The

Hereford Sire Summary Available

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The spring 1996 Sire Summary of Hereford bulls, listing 4,662 sires, is available from the American Hereford Association (AHA).

This edition was analyzed using data from United States and Canadian Herefords, making it the largest such data set in the world.

This seedstock selection tool lists all the sires in one section, which includes those highly proven sires with many progeny as well as younger sires with a minimum of 15 progeny.

"This edition contains not only Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) and accuracies, but also includes numbers of progeny and herds, as well as numbers of daughters for each sire," said Dr. John Hough, AHA's director of research and performance records. "Confidence intervals are included to describe the relative accuracy of each EPD."

The Hereford Sire Summary carries complete explanations of EPDs, traits, and how to use the numbers. It is available at no charge from American Hereford Association, P.O. Box 014059, Kansas City, MO 64101, (816) 842-3757.

drives the cost up much higher. However, work is under way to correct these problems.

The second system for weed control relies on sprayer-mounted optical sensors to detect the presence of weeds and turn the spray nozzles on and off. This system is reported to reduce the amount of spray applied by 50 to 90 percent but does not reduce the amount of spray applied to the actual weeds. I had read another article describing use of this type of system in a California vineyard and the owner was very pleased with the results. However, as you would expect, this technology is not cheap and thus can only be afforded by large operations at this time. Another restriction on the current system is that it cannot discriminate between different types of vegetation (such as zucchini vs. crabgrass) and, as a result, is limited to orchard and vineyard use.

You can see the environmental advantages of both of these systems.

Environmental and health concerns are going to have a major influence on the way we produce agricultural products in the future. You've felt the effects of these concerns already with the loss of numerous pesticides, fungicides, and herbicides over the last few years. I encourage you to keep current with the latest technology in crop production and experiment on your farm as much as is possible. And when you do adopt one of the new "environmentally friendly" methods of production, be sure to use it as a marketing tool.

You should use every opportunity to increase the profitability of your operation. You can't fight these changes, so use them to your advantage.

Food Safety Forum To Develop Educational Programs

general catagories include: food-borne illness surveillance; food safety training; consumer education; and regulatory improvements. He said assuring the safety of food is a tremendous challenge. But when proper public health barriers are put in place the result is the reduction of illnesses from unsafe food. As food processes become more complex and high risk groups grow in numbers, the challenge becomes even greater.

Vikki Pelkofer, member of STOP (Safe Tables Our Priority), Gibsonia, gave the consumer's side. She related her personal experience of how her two-year-old daughter became ill and died from a partly cooked hamberger that contained e-coli 0157:H7.

"Food as in the case of any product or service, should be purchased with the full expectation that it does not present the possibility of danger or death," Pelkofer said. "Otherwise producers, processors, and retailers should be required to label their product as potentially lethal. It will take continuous effort on the part of everyone, without regard for costs. Can anyone of us look into the eyes of a child and say they aren't worth it?"

Some of the summary thoughts from the work sessions include:

• Even though everything is done to properly handle the food from farm to table, it can never be considered 100 percent safe. Life just isn't 100 percent safe.

• The lowest paid workers are often the last line of defense in the food safety chain.

• Imports from other countries often do not have the same safety requirements. If you were in those countries you would not eat the food or drink the water, but these same foods may now be in your own supermarket and you don't know it.

• Sensational media coverage has done much to break down trust in the food industry. The food industry has added to the problem by not being open about the problems that are inherent in producing food.

• Testing equipment has become so sensitive that even the smallest particle of contamination can be detected even though it would do no harm or may be naturally inherent in the product.

The forum continued Thursday with delegates charged with forming a food safety plan for Pennsylvania.

WARNING!

An odorless, colorless, invisible--and costly-- forage thief!

You can't see it--and you can't stop it. Storage losses in forage can steal your valuable crop--how much is lost depends upon how you store your feed.

- Tower Silos have Up to 8% loss
- Bunkers have Up to 45% loss*

If the average difference in feed lost between tower silos and bunkers is 30%, then storage of 1000 tons will mean 300 tons MORE lost in a bunker. If silage is valued at $30 per ton, the additional losses from bunker storage would be $9000 per year.

For information on losses for all types of crop storage methods, contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of "Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

Feedsack Collectors Swap Swatches And Stories

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

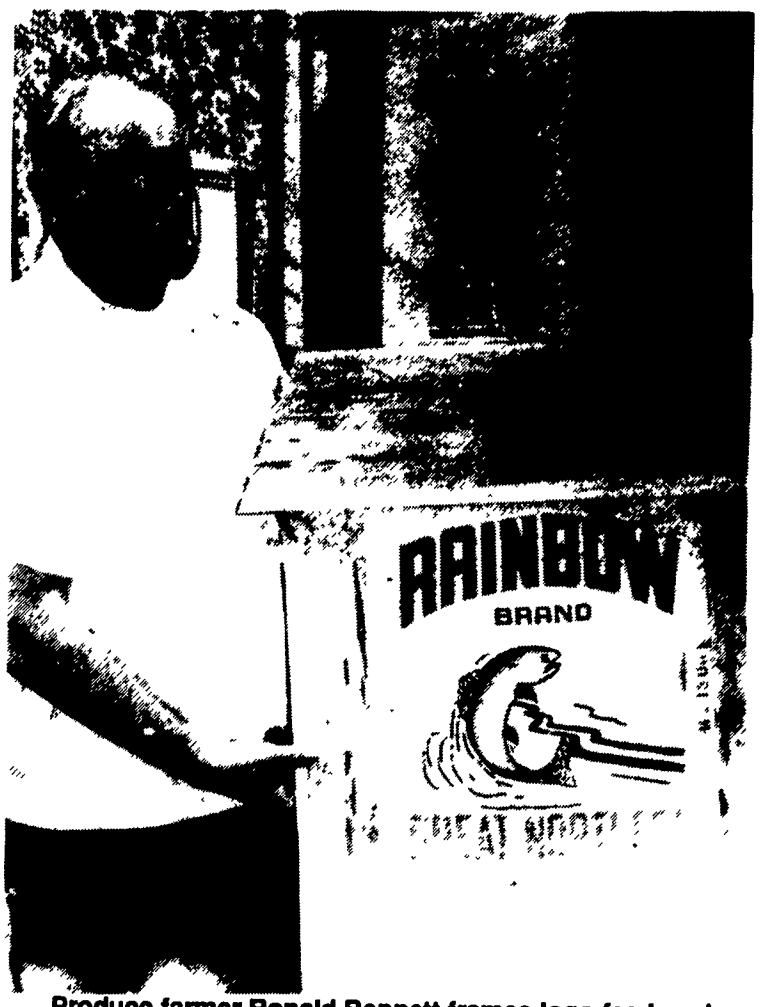
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Ronald Bennett farms in the summer and frames in the winter. He is one of 70 exhibitors who displayed feed sack collections at the Feed Sack Club's second convention held concurrently with the Heritage Quilt Celebration in Lancaster last weekend.

A produce farmer in New York, Bennett often accompanied his wife to quilt shows. During a feed sack presentation by Jean Clark Stapel, Bennett became mesmerized by the history surrounding the feedsacks. He's been collecting the bags ever since. He frames the logo bags in old barnwood, cypress wood, or whatever other wood he finds fascinating. He also hand quilts the framed bags himself.

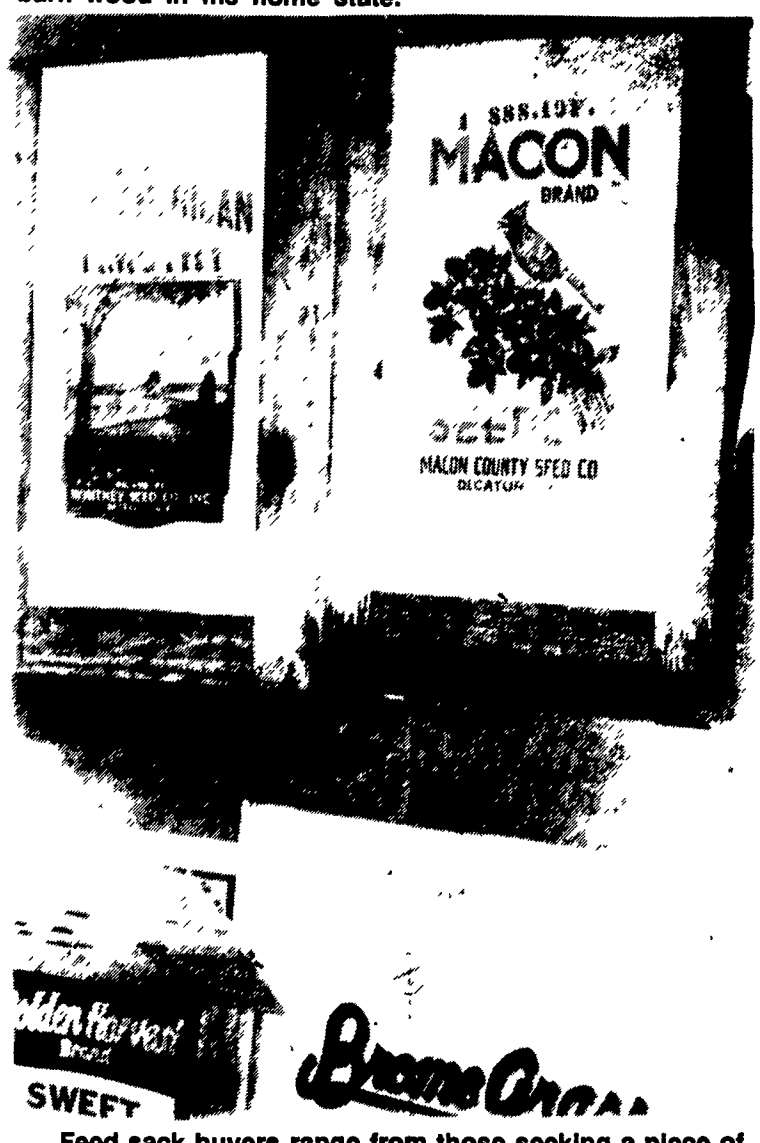
At the convention, members bartered sacks and patches to add to their collections. Attorneys, housewives, farmers, doctors, men and women from all walks of life make up the membership who share a common love for sacks.

Men seem as interested in feed sack collecting as women. In fact, Jean Clark Stapel, president of the Feed Sack Club, said, "Almost without fail, men remember feed sack patterns with fondness. Some ladies don't like the memories evoked from the sacks. They grew up feeling deprived because 'townies made fun of their chicken linen.'"

Jean Clark Stapel, left, founder of the Feed Sack Club, said the club continues to grow in members. The club's display in conjunction with the Quilter's Heritage Celebration in Lancaster attracts large numbers of viewers from all states.



Produce farmer Ronald Bennett frames logo feed sacks in the winter. Bennett enthalls listeners with the history behind many of the logo quilts. He travels extensively in search of rare patterns and frames them in a variety of different woods such as cypress wood found in Florida and old barn wood in his home state.



Feed sack buyers range from those seeking a piece of history to those who find the sacks eye-appealing.

But the majority of people who viewed the feedsack display during the convention enjoyed talking about the memories the sacks evoked.

Comments overheard included remarks such as "I remember my mother had an apron of that pattern. I had a school dress from that. . . ."

Collectors seem to fall prey to collecting feed sacks in various ways. Pat Reed of Titusville said that she was helping her mom clean out the attic when she found 18 feed sacks. That brought back childhood memories of dish towels made from sugar sacks and aprons made from flour sacks.

She has now collected swatches of 10,515 different patterns and is still adding to it. Pat has arranged the swatches in albums and categorized them according to designs and color. There are whole collections of stripes, plaids, checks, and flowers. Many members spend hours looking for patterns they remember from childhood or to find out exactly what is available.

Some people cut up sacks to use in quilt making and other craft projects. But some cannot bear to cut into the sacks.

Jane Stapel said, "Those who are cutting up the sacks are doing exactly what the manufacturing companies planned for us to do. They knew women were recycling the sacks into clothing, quilt tops, linings, towels, curtains, slipcovers, and more. That is why they printed them, so we would buy them."

On the other hand, she knows the feeling of wanting to keep the sacks intact for posterity. She said, "If you aren't comfortable cutting them, then don't! The day may come when you can. If it never comes, that's OK too."

Anna Wescott has more than 3,000 different designs in sacks. Like many members, Anna doesn't normally sell but will trade for a pattern she doesn't have. Here she displays her favorite Cinderella prints.

Feed sacks held everything from dairy feed, hog feed, poultry mash, and rice, sugar, and flour for human consumption.

Women bartered over feed bags to mix and match the patterns. By the 1940s, there was a demise in the popularity of feed bags. Paper bags were more sanitary for human consumption and more economical. Three paper bags to hold the feed could be made for the cost of one cloth one.

Eventually cloth feed bags faded from the scene, but recent years has seen a resurrection of interest in these collectible bags.

"The sacks perpetuate history," Jean said.

Bennett pointed to a seamless bag, which he has in his collection. The bag was produced in the 1840s so that it could be thrown over a horse's back and hauled without ripping.

Sacks with the NRA emblem are also highly collectible. The emblem stands for the National Recovery Act and have code numbers printed such as 58-12, which meant it was printed in December 1958.

Displayed were feed sacks used to send grain for Belgium relief. In appreciation, the Belgium women

Flour Sack Underwear

When I was a maiden fair
Mamma made our underwear
With five tots and Pa's poor pay,
How could she buy lingerie?

Monograms and fancy stitches
Were not on our fancy britches.
Panty waists that stood the test
With Gold Medal on the chest.
Little pants, the worst of all
With a seam I still recall.
Havesters were gleaning wheat right across the little seat.

Tougher than a grizzley bear
Was our flour sack underwear.
Plain and fancy, three feet wide,
Stronger than a hippo's hide
Through the years each Jill and Jack
Wore the sturdy garb sack.

Waste not, want not, we soon learned.
Penny saved, a penny earned.
Bespreads, curtains, tea towels too,
Tablecloths to name a few.
But the best beyond compare
Was our flour sack underwear.

Spring A Great Time For Planting Flowers

Add color and texture to your spring garden with annuals and perennial flowers. Most types are non-woody plants grown for their bloom or foliage effect.

Obtain perennials and annuals that were grown locally. Many sources include farmers markets, greenhouses, garden centers, plant farms, nurseries and other garden retailers. Plant hardy perennials in April. Wait to plant most annuals until after the last spring frost date. Check with your local Extension Office for the last spring frost dates in your area. For Southeast Pa., the last spring frost dates range from April 25 to May 10.

Most annuals required reseeding and replanting each spring. A few 'hardy annuals' can be seeded directly outside before the last frost date. These include alyssum, calendula, clarkai, eschscholzia, godetia, nasturtium, nigelia, phacelia, sanvitalia, and lathyrus.

Perennials survive many years with care. Most perennials are planted as divisions in containers for sale in the spring. If purchased bareroot, soak them in a bucket of water for 1/2 hour to thoroughly wet the root system before planting. Plant at the same depth as the container. Plant to the soil line on bare root plants. Be careful to avoid burying the crowns. If planted too deeply, crowns and roots may rot. If too shallow, they may dry out. After planting, water well with a 'starter' solution of fertilizer. Starter fertilizers are high in phosphorus which aids in root establishment.

Dwarf and mixed-color annuals known as sunflowers are a hot seller this spring. Landscapers love them for back borders, flower beds and wild garden areas. Kids crave them for their seed heads. Flower arrangers seek them out for summer picnic arrangements. 'Newer' sunflowers are used in flower bouquets and cut flower arrangements and not flower borders, where overall plant appearance, not yield is the goal. Set aside a sunny spot with average soil to grow sunflowers. Plant after the danger of a late spring frost.

Second, skip the fertilizer and space the plants only six to eight inches apart at most. Rich soils and wide spacing are the bane of cut-flower types of sunflowers because pampering makes the plants grow too large and produces flowers of such size that they are hard to use in a bouquet.

Third, plant every two weeks for a continuous crop of sunflowers. Most of the cutting-type sunflowers will be ready for harvest in just 60 days from sowing. Unfortunately, sunflowers don't last a long time.

There are 35 or more varieties of sunflowers that make excellent cut flowers. A few that I've enjoyed include Velvet Queen, a tall dar, crimson colored flower and Italian white with its free flowering form and creamy-white flowers. Evening Sun and Autumn beauty have unique blends of rich brown, deep mahogany and warm red colors. Orange Sun has a showy giant pom-pom mum-type flower.

For a care-free alternature to sunflowers that attracts butterflies and hummingbirds, tithonia 'torch,' also called Mexican Sunflower, has a bright orange flower and tall plant habit. Like other sunflower types, it's very drought tolerant. It produces a busy hedge in a single season with flowering beginning in mid-summer.

Feedsack Collectors

embroidered designs on the feed sacks and sent them back to the U.S.

A sack marked ballot bag was used to store the ballots from a presidential election.

Bennet has some cloth feed sacks with a paper label across the middle. Bennet said that these are rare. He finds that the western part of the U.S. has a bigger collection of sacks than the east.

Nightshirts, a boy's tie, curtains, tablecloths, and pillow cases made from feed sacks were displayed. Three feed sacks were required for a dress. A fourth one was required if a matching apron was made. Four sacks were required to make a bed sheet, which were made from plain white sacks.

Harrison McCann of Dillsburg said that he cut pieces for his wife's quilting projects for 10 years. "One time I got ahead of her and she told me that I should learned to piece the patches. So I did. I made quilts for our three children from the feed sack patches."

The McCanns find it difficult to find sacks with the same pattern. They need six to seven sacks to complete a backing for their quilts.

While the sacks are believed to have been used in every state, Pat said that she found as many as 300 in Missouri while traveling through the area but she and other members have not been able to find any in Georgia.

They don't know the reason for the inavailability.

The fabric from the sacks made years ago holds up well. If the sacks are stained, many members say that washing them in dishwasher powder bleaches out the stain without bleaching the design colors.

Those interested in knowing more about the Feed Sack Club and conventions held across the U.S. should contact Jean Clark Stapels at P.O. Box 4168, Pittsburgh, PA 17202. Or, call (412) 766-3996. Membership fee for the Feedsack Club is $10 per year. Members receive a bimonthly newsletters called "switches and swatches."

Produce farmer Ronald Bennett can be contacted at 1870 Strong Rd., Victor, N.Y. 14564 or call (716) 657-7505.

Send the Message of Love

The other night when I got home from a late evening meeting Russell greeted me at the door and announced he had done several loads of laundry. What a message of love! Are you sending messages of love occasionally to your partner?

Partners in a growing relationship enjoy doing things for each other. She may send him notes. He may do the laundry. But they do things for each other that send the message of love.

One of the difficulties in marriage is that sometimes one partner is trying to send a message of love, but the other one isn't getting it. For instance, if a husband likes to buy little gifts for his wife but she worries about the budget, she may not appreciate the gifts. Or, if he does not help around the house, she may not feel that he loves her no matter what he says.

It doesn't do any good to be angry when your partner doesn't seem to get the message from the things you do for him or her. Rather than be mad, see if you can figure out what language of love works for your partner. Think about the things you've done that your spouse appreciates most. Taking time to listen? Helping out? Writing or telling your love? Baking his/her favorite cookies? Giving a foot massage at the end of the day? In order to be more effective in showing love for your partner, you might ask him or her to describe the things that give the message of love. Pick one or two that you can work on. Send a message of love every day in a way that works for your partner.

Partners in a growing relationship use conflict to improve the relationship. When people first date or get married they often overlook or ignore the things that bother them in each other. After a while they may be more bothered by those things. They may think only about the things that bother them. They may become angry and wonder why the spouse does such awful things. But sometimes, the spouse has not changed. The other has just focused on the annoying actions. There will always be differences anytime two people share their lives as much as a husband and wife. But those differences can help us to grow toward a stronger and more balanced relationship if we use the differences wisely. There are several rules to remember if you want to keep your differences from ruining your marriage.

Let some things go. Some things aren't worth fighting about, and some times are bad times for fighting. Sometimes we let little things bother us until they are all we think about. It may be best to overlook little differences. Sometimes we are bothered because we're tired or sick. Or we may feel angry. But if we are tired or in an angry mood, we might do better to save the discussion until after a good night's sleep. When we start pouring out our anger, we may just get more angry and damage the relationship.

Talk to find answers rather than to blame or hurt your spouse. Discussions are for finding answers, not for blaming, punishing, or hurting our partner. It is not very useful to figure out who started the problem. Each partner can blame the other. It is damaging to try to hurt or punish your partner. The reason to discuss problems is to find better ways to make the marriage work. Ask your partner questions like "Would it help if I (describe something you can do to improve the relationship)?"

Recognize the differences between preferences and principles. Preferences include our favorite color, our favorite sandwich, the temperature we prefer for the bedroom. Principles involve standards. We don't believe in hurting other people. We believe in being responsible. Sometimes in marriage we confuse principles and preferences. We think our partner is cruel because of disagreements over television programs, use of money, use of free time. Your partner's way is not necessarily better or worse than your way. Try to find the values you have in common to help you make decisions that satisfy you both.

Take time to understand your partner. It's common for people to judge the goodness or smartness of what other people do. But a lot of conflict can be avoided by taking time to understand rather than judge. It's hard to do. Most people never get good at it. But the partner who takes time to understand can be a more loving effective partner.

For example, if your partner is bothered about something, it's not helpful to say, "That's stupid" or "You'll get over it" or "Why can't you grow up?" When a person is hurting, it's more helpful to say "That sounds very frustrating" or "Did you feel disappointed?"

Have you thought of a message of love you can send to your partner in the next few days? Take a few minutes to let your partner know that they still are the most important person in your life. Have fun this summer with your growing relationship!

Chicken, Turkey, Pork, Lamb Offer Burger Fare

With Americans' fast-paced lifestyle, fast food and fast recipes have become meal staples. Ground burger meat can be made in minutes and offers excellent variety and taste.

Ground pork, ground lamb, ground chicken, and ground turkey are almost as readily available as ground beef. The taste of many dishes can vary just by changing the listed meat ingredient to a different kind of ground meat.

Here are some ideas to get you started.

THE OTHER BURGER

1 pound lean ground pork
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 garlic clove, crushed
Salt, to taste

Gently mix all ingredients and shape into four patties, about ¾ -inch thick. Grill or broil for 4-5 minutes on each side. Serve in sandwich buns, if desired. Serves 4.

Italian burgers: Add one teaspoon crushed fennel seed and 1 teaspoon crumbled oregano.

Cajun burgers: Add ¼ teaspoon each crushed thyme, oregano, and cayenne pepper.

Jerk burgers: Add ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, oregano, and thyme.

Bangkok burgers: Add 1 teaspoon fresh ginger root and 1 teaspoon soy sauce.

Southwest burgers: Add ¼ teaspoon each ground cumin, oregano, and cayenne pepper.

HAM LOAF

1 pound ground ham
1 pound ground pork
½ cup milk
2 cups cornflakes
2 eggs, beaten
8-ounce can crushed pineapple

Combine ham, pork, milk, cornflakes, and eggs in bowl; mix well. Shape into loaf; place in loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Pour crushed pineapple over top of ham loaf. Bake for 30 minutes longer. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

SPICY TORTILLA SOUP

½ pound lean ground pork
½ cup chopped onion
4 cups crushed canned tomatoes
2 cups chicken broth
8-ounce jar salsa, medium-hot
1 teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
4 corn tortillas, cut into thin strips

Brown pork and onion over medium-high heat in large saucepan, stirring occasionally. Add remaining ingredients except tortilla strips. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Stir tortilla strips into soup and simmer for 5-10 minutes more, until strips are softened. Serve hot.

THAI PORK BURRITOS

1 pound lean ground pork
2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger root
1 garlic clove, peeled and crushed
1 small onion, thinly sliced
2 cups coleslaw mix with carrots
1 teaspoon sesame oil
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons lime juice
1 tablespoon honey
2 teaspoons ground coriander
½ teaspoons crushed red pepper
4 large (10-inch) flour tortillas, warmed
Fresh cilantro, chopped (garnish)

Heat large nonstick skillet over high heat. Add pork, cook, crumble, and stir until pork is no longer pink, about 3-4 minutes. Add ginger, garlic, onion, and coleslaw mix and stir-fry pork for 2 minutes, until vegetables are wilted. Combine all remaining ingredients, except tortillas and cilantro, in small bowl and add to skillet. Stir constantly to blend all ingredients well, about one minute. Spoon equal portions of mixture onto warm flour tortillas. Roll up to encase filling. Garnish with cilantro and serve. Serves 4.

Hatfield Quality Meats

Mex-Lamb Tortilla Lasagna is a fine example of using other burger meat for a typical ground beef recipe.

ATTENTION

Surprise your mother, wife, or grandmother by sending one of her recipes, which you enjoy. Include a few sentences about her and a picture if you have one. The article will appear in the May 11 issue, but we need the information by May 6. Please send immediately.

TEX-MEX SKILLET SUPPER

1 pound lean ground pork
2 cloves minced garlic
12-ounce can kernel corn, drained
16-ounce can black beans, drained
12-ounce jar salsa
½ cup water
1 teaspoon dried oregano, crushed
½ teaspoon ground cumin
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)
6 6-inch flour tortillas, cut in half and then into 1-inch strips
2 ounces shredded cheddar cheese

In large skillet, cook pork and garlic over medium-high heat until pork is lightly browned; drain off any fat. Stir in all remaining ingredients except cheese; bring to a boil, cover with cheese and cook for 2 minutes more, until cheese is melted. Serve hot, if desired, with sour cream, green onions and tortilla chips. Serves 6.

Featured Recipe

Although "other burgers" are featured in today's issue, beef burgers will always be a favorite with many of our readers.

Beef offers that "all American" flavor that is hard to beat. The beef industry is creating leaner beef while maintaining the hearty flavor.

Here is one to try out on your grill. For more recipes, send a self-addressed stamped business sized envelop to Pa. Beef Council, 4714 Orchard St., Harrisburg, PA 17109.

ALL-AMERICAN STUFFED BURGERS

1½ pounds ground beef
1¼ teaspoon salt, divided
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅔ cup shredded zucchini
½ cup thinly sliced mushrooms
¼ cup chopped red pepper
½ teaspoon Italian seasoning
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
4 whole wheat hamburger buns, split
4 teaspoons butter

Sprinkle 1 teaspoon salt and pepper over ground beef, mix lightly but thoroughly. Divide meat into eight equal portions and form into patties, 4 inches in diameter. Cook zucchini, mushrooms, red pepper, Italian seasoning and remaining salt in oil in large frying pan over medium heat 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool; stir in cheese. Place an equal amount of vegetable mixture in center of four patties. Top with remaining patties. Press edges together securely to seal. Broil patties over medium coals 5 to 6 minutes. Turn and continue broiling 5 to 6 minutes or to desired doneness. Meanwhile, spread cut side of each bun with equal amounts of butter and toast on grill one minute. Place a patty on bottom half of each bun; cover with bun top. 4 servings.

ANSWER — D.R. Newsom, Cooperstown, N.Y., wanted a recipe for French apple pie. Thanks to Mildred Hess, Myerstown, for sending a recipe.

French Apple Creme Pie

Sift together:
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
Cut in:
⅔ cup shortening until particles are fine. Sprinkle:
6-7 tablespoons cold water over mixture while stirring lightly with fork until dough holds together.

Divide in half, form into balls. Flatten to ½ -inch. Roll out one portion on floured surface to a circle 1½ inches larger than inverted 9-inch pie pan. Fit into pan.
For filling, combine:
¾ -1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Add:
5 cups pared, sliced apples (about 5 medium)

Stir to coat. Turn into pastry-lined pan. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter.

Roll out remaining dough. Cut 1½ to 2 -inch hole in center of pastry (sauce will be poured through hole). Moisten rim of bottom crust. Place top crust over filling. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes, then at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes until apples are tender. Pour sauce through opening while warm. Cool completely.
Creme Sauce:

Combine 2 slightly beaten eggs (or 1 egg and 2 egg yolks), 1 cup sugar and 1 tablespoon lemon juice in saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add ⅓ cup softened cream cheese and ½ cup sour cream.

ANSWER — Mary Wagner, McClure, wanted a recipe for spinach with bacon, hot vinegar, sugar, and water dressing that is not thick. Her mom called it scalded dressing. Thanks to Gloria Sweigart, Manheim, and to Carol Pretz, Middleburg, for sending recipes.

Sweet-Sour Dressing

Wash spinach or endive and place in colander to drain. Fry bacon crisp, cool, crumble, set aside.

Place equal amounts of vinegar (apple cider not distilled) sugar and water in a saucepan. For example: 1 cup each. Bring to a boil to dissolve sugar. Place greens in a serving dish, pour dressing over and toss. Sprinkle bacon on top. Can also add a sliced hard cooked egg. Serve immediately. Greens will wilt down.

Carol Pretz sends the recipe handed down from her mother. The scalded dressing is good on spinach, watercress, lettuce, dandelion, and all leafy vegetables. Carol warns, "Don't measure fat grams or you might faint."

Take a large skillet and fry one-half pound bacon cut into 1-inch long pieces. When nicely browned, do not drain off the grease. Set aside until cool.

Beat together with the cooled grease: 1 heaping tablespoon flour, and 3 heaping tablespoons sugar, salt and pepper to taste, and 1 raw egg.

Add ⅓ cup cider vinegar and 1 cup water. Stir thoroughly.

Heat again on medium high stirring constantly and when it begins to thicken, put in three chopped hard-boiled eggs.

Stir mixture constantly. Add desired greens while mixture is cooking for about a minute. This will scald the greens.

1 cup salsa
8-ounce can red kidney beans, drained
8-ounces light sour cream
¼ cup canned chopped green chilies
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon flour
Non-stick spray vegetable coating
3 flour tortillas (10-inch)
1 cup shredded lettuce
¼ cup chopped tomato
¼ cup shedded cheddar (optional)
¼ cup additional salsa (optional)

In large saucepan cook ground lamb until no pink remains. Remove from heat; drain well. Stir in 1 cup salsa and drained beans. Set aside.

In a bowl, mix sour cream, chilies, ¼ cup cheese, and flour.

Spray a 10-inch pie plate or quiche dish with non-stick spray. Place one tortilla in pie plate or quiche dish. Top with ¾ cup meat mixture and ½ sour cream mixture. Top with second tortilla and repeat with ¾ cup meat and remaining sour cream. Top with a third tortilla and remaining meat.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes or until heated through. Let stand 5 minutes before cutting into wedges to serve. Top each serving with shredded lettuce and chopped tomato. Garnish with additional cheese and salsa if desired.

LAMBURGERS IN A BLANKET

1½ pound ground lamb
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
3 tablespoons catsup
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
8 refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
3 tablespoons sesame seeds

In large bowl, mix together all ingredients, except rolls. Mix very well, then divide into six equal parts and shape into patties. Broil about seven minutes on each side. Separate crescent roll dough into four rectangles. Spread dough on cutting board and press perforations closed with fingertips. Cut dough into one-inch strips and wrap around each patty. Roll up sesame seeds. Arrange lamb patties on a piece of aluminum foil on a baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 minutes or until brown.

Pork Rolls

Ham Stuffing:
- 2 cups ground cooked smoked ham
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup dry bread crumbs
- 1 egg, slightly beaten

Bread stuffing:
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ⅓ cup butter

Brown:
- 3 slices fresh ham (sliced ½ -inch thick)
- 2 tablespoons butter

Glaze:
- ½ cup orange marmalade
- 2 teaspoons maraschino cherry juice

Bone steaks, pound to flatten. Brown lightly in 2 tablespoons butter. Spread steaks with ham stuffing. Cover evenly with a layer of bread stuffing. Roll up jelly roll fashion and tie with a string. Bake in covered pan in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Remove from oven. Combine orange marmalade and cherry juice for glaze; spread over pork rolls. Bake uncovered, 15-20 minutes longer. Remove string; slice each roll into 2-inch slices. Makes 6 servings.

WILL THE IRS INHERIT YOUR ESTATE?

We can help prevent the loss of your estate due to taxes

New York Life's Survivorship Whole Life policy was created to provide you and your spouse with life insurance coverage, and needed liquidity, when your estate taxes are due.

It works like this: When one spouse dies, the resulting estate tax can be deferred until after the death of the surviving spouse. At that time, the policy's proceeds become available, and can be used to help pay the usually heavy estate tax. In other words, New York Life makes the proceeds available when they"re needed the most.

You've worked hard all of your life, and shouldn't have to spend time worrying about what will happen to your estate. Call us for all the details and let us show you why New York Life is The Company You Keep.

Sarah Talks About Raising A Seeing Eye Dog

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GLEN ROCK (York Co.) — Sarah Grothe wanted to raise an animal as a 4-H project.

But Sarah does not live on a farm. Her parents had no place to keep a large animal for her to raise and show.

Then a 4-H leader suggested that she consider raising a puppy. Sarah loves dogs. She thought that was a wonderful idea.

This puppy, though, would be a special one. It was bred and born to do a very important job.

Sarah's puppy's name is Arnold. Arnold was born in January 1995, and came to live with Sarah and her parents, Judy and Will Grothe, when he was seven weeks old.

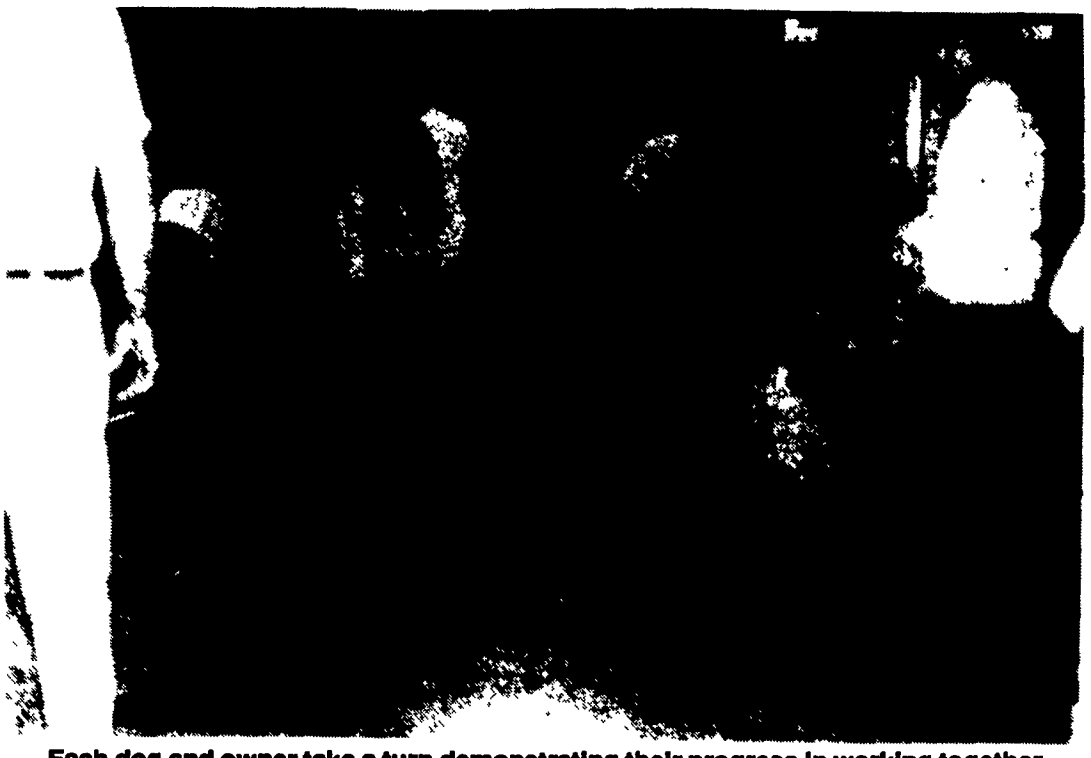
Arnold is a purebred black Labrador Retriever. He and his brothers and sisters in the litter were bred to be trained as Seeing Eye Dogs to help blind people.

But all puppies raised to be trained as seeing eye dogs must first have a chance to be a puppy while they are growing up. Seeing Eye puppies need a "foster home" where they can run and play with special human friends.

Raising Seeing Eye puppies is an important responsibility. They must have regular veterinarian visits to make sure they are healthy and receive all their shots against dog diseases. They are only allowed to have toys made of special materials that will not break apart into little pieces when they chew on them, so that they do not choke or become sick. Grooming includes brushing and even toenail clipping when they become too long. The Seeing Eye foundation pays almost all the costs involved in the puppy's care, even the puppy's food.

Several commands must be taught to all Seeing Eye puppies by their owners. They learn voice commands which teach them to sit and lie quietly, to stay when their owner walks away and to come when called. When Sarah eats meals with her family, Arnold has been taught to lie quietly at her feet. At night, he sleeps in a kennel near Sarah's bed.

Seeing Eye puppies must also go to "school." They and their owners attend classes where they learn to be calm around other dogs and people and to obey additional commands.



Each dog and owner take a turn demonstrating their progress in working together to learn the obedience commands.

Sarah knows that she is helping prepare Arnold for a very important job in the Seeing Eye program.

Sarah and Arnold go to "school" at a monthly training class and 4-H meeting held at the York 4-H Center. About 20 puppies and their owners take part in these meetings. Some of the puppy owners are 4-H members and some are adults who want to help blind people by raising these special dogs.

As part of his training, Arnold goes many other places with Sarah and her family. By going into places like stores, banks and meetings, puppies learn to be comfortable around lots of different people and different situations. Arnold even attends church and Sunday School with Sarah. He does not go to school with her every day, though.

In March, the Grothes took Arnold along to watch a St. Patrick's Day parade. At first, he was afraid of the drums in the bands, but he soon became used to the loud noise.

There is more than one way to climb a sliding board.

A training session during a 4-H club meeting helps Arnold become accustomed to other dogs.

When Arnold is about 16 months old, Sarah will return him to the Seeing Eye Foundation. He will be tested to see if he has the behavior and personality of a Seeing Eye dog. If he does, Arnold will then be given very intensive training for four months. For three months, a trainer will work with him. Then for one month, Arnold will be trained together with the blind person that will be his new owner.

If a puppy has not learned to obey commands or does not respond to the training, the Seeing Eye foundation may give the foster owner the chance to keep it instead. Arnold is well behaved and Sarah believes that he will become a very good Seeing Eye dog.

Sarah and Arnold have become very special friends and she knows it will be hard to say goodbye to him. But she also knows he has an important job to do as an adult dog. And while she prepares to give him up, Sarah is already making plans to adopt another 4-H project Seeing Eye puppy.

Missionary's Son Stricken With Rare Disease

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — Nine-year-old Jeremiah Brackbill is struggling for his life in India. While accompanying his mother, Susan, who is a missionary advisor for medical research in India, Jeremiah developed an illness called Guillan-Barre Syndrome, which attacks the muscular system.

Jeremiah is completely paralyzed and on a life support system. He suffers temporary blindness and has had multiple strokes in his brain.

His mother is by his side in the Ludhiana Christian Medical College in India. The family plans to transfer Jeremiah to a local hospital when his condition stabilizes. The expected cost is $25,000 to $75,000 to fly him to the United States since the trip will probably require a medically equipped aircraft. The acute attack of the disease will require lots of therapy for Jeremiah.

Jeremiah's home area of Belleville in Mifflin County has rallied to help him. A 1,200 pound black Angus steer will be auctioned at the Belleville Livestock Market on Wednesday, April 24, at 3 p.m. The steer is donated by Wade Cleck, general manager of Valley Protein, Inc.

The auction is one way to help defray some of the expenses. Other contributions can be forwarded to Jeremiah Fund, c/o Lewistown Trust Company, 100 W. Water St., Lewistown, PA 17044.

Schmucker-Smoker-Smucker Hold Family Reunion

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — If you are a descendent of immigrant Christian and Catherine Schmucker or are interested in Amish and Mennonite history, be sure to mark the dates of July 18, 19, and 20 on your calender.This is the fifth S-S-S North American Family Reunion. Headquarters will be Conestoga Valley High School in Lancaster County.

Amish progenitor Christian Schmucker and his family came from Switzerland through the port of Philadelphia in 1752, and traveled about 50 miles west of the city to establish a farm in Eastern Lancaster County.

The activities for Friday, July 19 include an extensive tour of the original Schmucker homestead plus numerous other points of historical interest.

Also a reunion first! There will be an organized program and activities for children K-5. The activities will be based on what our ancestors experienced when they arrived in America.

The keynote speaker, Ivan J. Kauffman, a writer who resides in Washington, D.C., will delight you with his address, "From the Ausbund to the Internet: The Odyssey of the Amish-Mennonite Family."

We invite you to come and become acquainted with the places and stories of our history, to understand our faith and heritage, and to meet close and newly-discovered distant relatives. Special Pennsylvania German food will be served.

If you would like more information about the S-S-S Reunion please write to A. Pearl Kreider, 546 Milton Road, Lancaster, PA 17602.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

With the exception of politics and religion, few subjects seem to be more controversial than that of the food we eat.

Or maybe it just seems that way to us because farmers are professional food producers and feel personally and intensly affected by the issues of food-related fact and fiction.

Healdine food hysteria most recently has centered on British beef, spurred when some scientists suggested a possible link between the fatal cattle disease Bovein Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE) and a rare human disease. No direct evidence of a link between the two has ever been made. British cattle imports into our country were banned 10 years ago, when BSE was found there. But our hearts go out to British farmers who may have prized bloodlines of cattle they've developed through many generations be destroyed.

Closer to home, remember the Alar scare of several years ago?

If I remember correctly, Alar was used to prolong the keeping quality of apples when it came under attack for causing cancer. Before the allegations were refuted, the apple industry — from growers to retailers — lost millions of dollars. And lots of folks temporarily fled from the wonderful taste and numerous health benefits of eating apples and apple products.

Several states have since passed "defamation of food" legislation dealing with scientifically-unproven accusations against food and food products that create economic fallout to those who produce and process it.

More recently, the dairy industry undertook efforts to raise the nationwide solids standards in mik to those which California consumers have enjoyed for many years. Solids are what is left of milk when the water is taken out, and the part in which the nutrient concentration — calcium especially — is found. Skim solids even have the butterfat removed, so there is no extra fat.

Solids standards were set years ago based on ... well, no one seems to exactly remember what. However, the level of solids currently in national milk standards is less than most cows naturally produce. So, adding solids to milk would return its nutrition levels more in line with what Bossie gives — and taste more like it, too. Consumers would get more bounce from the ounce, you might say.

Why it isn't there now makes no sense to me to begin with. But millions of dollars were spent in opposition by processors, who now remove those solids and resell or use them in other products, or have to purchase them elsewhere. It became not a nutrition, but an economic, battle.

And, now for the food issue that stirred all this frustration churning around in my head. (If you happen to be reading this during your dinner, you may want to finish later — reading not eating — due to the unappetizing discussion which is about to follow.)

Our Food and Drug Administration has approved the use of a fat substitute product called Olestra to be test-marketed this summer in a potato snack product. This fat substitute product has been found to create digestive problems for some people, including possible cramping and what in calves we call "scouring" or being "loose." It also is reported to inhibit the absorption of some vitamins and nutrients.

So, FDA has proposed to require that foods in which Olestra, or the proposed brand name Olean, carry a written warning. Maybe in a black box.

So we have national standards for milk which render it somewhat less nutritious than what the average cow actually produces.

And license the use of food activities which may created in some people symptoms of the classic 24-hour stomach flu. Appealing, huh?

Go figure.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

This is a dreary day as I sit down to write this article. I've just been to a funeral of my last living aunt who was 96 years old. My parents died quite a few years ago and now relatives say, "You are the next generation."

Last week my husband and I looked over a big coat box full of really old pictures. We found some to send to others who might enjoy them. And some to share with family. I even hand-delivered a wedding photo to a daughter of the couple pictured. It was taken on the West Coast as they were missionaries.

The pictures that are mailed to me from Texas and Georgia are so very different. They are brightly colored ones of grandchildren at their birthday parties. Mostly they are smiling children with a birthday cake. There are no pictures of myself with a cake at the same age. But, I do have one picture of friends and me sitting in a child's express wagon in the front yard when I was five years old.

I just looked out the window and it is snowing! This winter I've enjoyed being inside and looking out at the bad weather. Maybe this is the "onion snow" as yesterday I put 109 tiny onions in a row in the garden. I've also planted parsley, spinach, kale, Swiss chard, chives, garden cress and radishes plus a lot of other vegetables. The peas were planted a month ago and the yellow raspberries have been trimmed.

It looks as though I'll have a lot of rhubarb again. The horseradish plants are spreading and I would like to give some away as I only use a few. Last Year I planted Pennyroyal and it has come through the winter in good shape.

Allen has planted apricot trees and another peach tree. He also replaced 50 asparagus roots. A thornless blackberry bush has been planted on top of the hill behind our log house. I'm hoping that I and my husband can continue to garden for a while longer even if we are the "older generation."

With a toothpick try to work the glue into the crack. Let it dry. Some may dribble into the crock by gravity. When dry, repeat the same idea with the crack on the surface. This time brace the crock so the crack is on the top.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 14

In spite of all the snows and cancellation during the Winter of 1996, Lancaster Farm Women #14 met on Jan. 17 in the lovely home of Ruth Kreider. January meetings are traditionally a day on which members sew cancer pads for The Office Of Aging. Members completed 58 pads. Lunch wa prepared by the committee: Helen Hershey, Pauline, and Ruth Kreider. An interesting feature of the business meeting was roll call when members showed phots of their parents. The program was Clara Rohrer sharing her life story; taking us on a walk with her through childhood into these present years with her husband Willis.

For the February meeting members gathered at the Mill Stream Motor Lodge for lunch and a fun time playing bingo. Prizes brought by members were up for grabs by the winners. Roll call and the devotional meditation, led by Gladys Esbenshade, centered on the theme of love since members met Feb. 15th, the day following Valentine.

Hosting the March 13th meeing at the home of Rhoda Landis were Caroline Stoltzfus, Ada Rohrer, and Marion Rohrer. Each member bought some item or items of nonperishable food as the community service project. Christ Home for Children will be the receiver of the donation. Marion Rohrer offered a devotional meditation on truths gleaned from Rom. 8:28. Author of the book "Buggie Seat And Bare Feet," Rose Heiberger, provided the program by presenting a film about Pennsylvania Dutch Country.

Lebanon Society 21

Lebanon Farm Women #21 met at the home of Sherry Bashore for the March meeting. Hostess Sherry Bashore and Deb Cowels read scripture and a comical poem.

Members discussed the best time to go on a mystery tour. A shopping trip is planned for April at the Hershey Outlets.

Members brought along their baby pictures to play "Name that Baby."

Lancaster Society 20

Lancaster Farm Women 20 held a covered dish luncheon on Thursday, April 4, at the Memorial United Methodist Church in Quarryville where they entertained Societies #15 and #27.

There were 51 in attendance and for the program Cathy Shirk, R.N. spoke on the difference in the ways of caring for patients now and then years ago, even since she was in training. She was very interesting.

For the devotions, Barbara Stone read from the 11th Chapter of Mark followed by a corresponding poem "Riding Through Jerusalem" and closed by all praying the Lord's Prayer in unison. The Pledge of Allegiance was recited.

For the Roll Call each member mentioned an "old time remedy" used when they were young. The president, Marie Foose, presided at the business meeting. On April 19, she will be presenting a plaque to the FFA students at the Hoffman Building. Members voted to give a $15 gift certificate for Prom Night and also voted for Hospice to be considered for the County Project. Dorothy Crawford reported the Sunshine Committee sent 8 Get Well and Sympathy cards during the month. This year Society #20 has its 50th Anniversary and in June members will decide how we will celebrate.

In May, Society #20 is going to the Strasburg Railroad for the ride and luncheon.

Berks Society 6

The children have contributed items to create theme baskets for this year's event. These one-of-a-kind specialty interest baskets will join a host of other goods on the auction block. Items for sale range all the way from a china closet to an 18-foot sugar maple tree planted on your property. The weekend's activities begin at 3 p.m. Friday afternoon with delicious chicken barbecue. Halves of chicken may be picked up at Manheim's Gazebo and Longenecker's Hardware Store. Adult dinners are available at Hernley's Church and the school gym. Included with half a chicken is a baked potato, roll, coleslaw, applesauce, and beverage. Soft ice cream with strawberry topping, as well as enormous assortment of other mouthwatering desserts, can be purchased to round off your meal or for enjoyment later at home.

Plan on some extra time Friday evening to preview sale items, enjoy the Lancaster County display of art, admire the delightful array of local quilts and wall hangings, and purchase handcrafts. A general auction will begin at 7 p.m. A Winross truck auction will be at 8 p.m.

Saturday's activities begin with a country breakfast served from 6 to 10 a.m. Menu choices include pancakes and sausage or egg omelet and toast. Auction action begins at 9 a.m. Don't miss the art auction at 11:45 or the quilt auction at 1 p.m.

Activities are planned for children between 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. An activity pass includes pony rides, balloons, clowns, face painting, spin art, games and more! The children are sure to have a fun time while dad and mother take in the auction sights!

An abundance of homemade food and baked goods will be available throughout the day. Come and join MCDS for a fun-filled day in the country. MCDS is along Route 72 just north of Manheim. Look for the big tents!

Students at Manheim Christian Day School help principal Frank Rittenhouse and Marilyn Zimmerman, auction chairperson, prepare for the school's 20th annual benefit auction to be held April 26 and 27. Students from left are Lynn Sauder, 7; Kayla Haldeman, 8, and Cole Zimmerman, 7.

Workshops Teach Milk Promotion

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — It doesn't matter where you grow up, you can promote milk if you believe in it. That was the concensus of the groups that gathered at the Spring District meetings held by the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc (PDPPS).

The all-day workshops held in five different locations teach participants how to lead effective dairy promotions on the county levels.

"For years were were prone to give our product away. Now we need to earn funds to promote it," said Jan Harting, PDPPS program director.

Several counties have held successful money-raising events while promoting milk and milk products. Some of these include ice cream, milk shake, and cheese sales held at fairs, camp grounds, festivals, parades and craft shows.

Program participants were exposed to the many different promotional materials and resources available to them. Carolyn Weaver showed the numerous books and activities the Dairy Council has available for loan or purchase.

The Dairy Council recently signed a partnership with a professional theatrical group to write a script that can be performed in schools.

Erin Astolfi is the person inside The Milk Thing costume. Three other people also make appearances as The Milk Thing,

"We call this 'edutainment,'" Carolyn said of the script that will promote proper nutrition. She stressed the value of putting energy and dollars into reaching kids with the nutrition message.

Jayne Seabright of Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association highlighted their services. She explained that their main focus is targeting 6-11 year olds because they are the largest segment of the total population and largely untouched by other dairy programs.

A large segment of this age bracket live in poverty. The school breakfast program funded by tax dollars offers school breakfast and lunch programs. The more children encouraged to participate in the program, the more milk will be consumed.

Coinciding with dairy promotion's newest television commercials featuring The Milk Thing was the appearance of the mascot at the spring meetings. A video, confirming the popularity of the mascot, was also shown of The Milk Thing's appearance at a school. Sales in school breakfasts and the consumption of milk increase dramatically after an appearance of The Milk Thing.

In addition to funding, participants were taught about insurance coverage needed for events and how to plan activities.

The spring district meetings were held in the following districts within Pennsylvania: southwest, southeast, northeast, northwest, and south central.

The Milk Thing paid a surprise visit to the Spring District Meetings. He (she) proved to be as big a hit with adults as with kids.

Farm Women Question Sen. Noah Wenger

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

RHEEMS (Lancaster Co.) — Although the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania was formed 82 years ago, its purpose remains the same: to contribute to the power and influence of the farm home, to contribute to the community activity of farm women, to develop leadership and to promote better living and working conditions in the farm homes of the state.

Each society holds a legislative and a farm safety meeting sometime throughout the year. Last week, Lancaster County's Society 8, in keeping with the bylaws, invited Sen. Noah Wenger to speak to them. About 24 members of Society 8 attended the afternoon session held at fellow member Arlene Witman's farm in Rheems. Lori Himmelberger, an aide to Sen. Wenger, also outlined her duties.

Wenger continues to live on the Cocalico farm, which his parents had moved on when he was nine years old. Wenger said that his interest in politics grew out of his involvement with the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, now known as the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

In 1976, Wenger ran for the state legislature, where he served three terms. In 1982, he ran for state senate, where he has served for the last 14 years. He and his wife Barbara have three married daughters and several grandchildren.

"Growing up on the farm prepared me for the state legislature," he said of his belief that farmers need to have a voice in government.

"Because of the year-round sessions, it is more difficult to run a farm and serve in office now than it was when I was first elected," Wenger said.

Wenger and his colleagues have been working hard to prepare a proposed state budget.

"We are trying to retrench and get a handle on expenses. We must downsize the government," he said.

"It's the first time in 25 years that the government has proposed a budget that is $30 million less than the previous year."

Wenger explained that when the economy is growing, the state has more revenue and does not need to raise taxes. Rather than raise taxes, he favors welfare reform.

"Welfare reform is designed for people to take greater responsibility for their own lives," Wenger said.

If the proposed budget is implemented, the welfare reform plan would save taxpayers $250 million yearly.

Wenger also favors local school districts to levy an income tax rather than a real estate tax, which he believes would be more equitable.

Members expressed frustration with the upkeep of Pennsylvania roads. Wenger explained that Pennsylvania has more roads to maintain than the combined roads of New England, New York, and New Jersey states.

The problem is compounded, he said, because another congressman who is chairman of transportation, has the opportunity to designate monies for pilot programs in his area resulting in less money administered by formula for Lancaster County roads.

Wenger talked about his district offices, which are open in Ephrata and in Rheems. Aide Lori Himmelberger, who works in the Rheems' office, said that forms and help for receiving birth certificates, drivers' licenses, maps, visitors' guides, and other general information are available at the district offices. The offices are opened 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Because Sen. Wenger is from the farm, members of the Society of Farm Women believe that he understands the needs of working farmers.

Hostess Arlene Witman, right, offers dessert to Lori Himmelberger, who works as an aide to Sen. Noah Wenger at the Rheems office. Lori explained her duties and the services available for constituents of the 36th district.

Maryland FFA Horse Judging Contest

The Walkersville FFA Chapter won the 1st place banner at the Annual Maryland FFA Horse Judging Contest held recently at Linganore High School in Frederick County, Maryland.

The 2nd place team was from Queen Anne's FFA Chapter. The contest is sponsored as a special project of the Maryland FFA Association.

Members of the Walkersville 1st place team are: Sarah Osborne, Liz Harmon, Kim Nichols, Kelly Lockhart, Chris Chambers, and Joey Biser.

Members of the Queen Anne's 2nd place team are: Don Potter, Erin Gearhart, Sharon Potter, Tami Sheeteenheim, Penny Potter, David Tribbett.

According to Contest Superintendent, Mollie Maslin of Perryman, Maryland, there were 15 FFA teams registered with 65 FFA Members participating.

The contest consisted of a hundred question test, designed to evaluate the contestant's knowledge and understanding of color and markings, lameness, blacksmith tools, tack, grooming tools, and parts of the horse. The students then judged three conformation classes and two performances classes at the Pleasant Fields Farm, courtesy of Doris Hubble of Libertytown. One set of oral reasons were given by each contestant on the first conformation class.

The top three winning teams (1st to 3rd) in the horse judging contest were: Walkersville FFA, Queen Anne's FFA, and Liberty FFA.

The first place team will represent Maryland in the National Horse Judging Contest in Kansas City, Mo., in November, while the 2nd place team will travel to the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass. in September.

Penn Yan FFA Elects New Officers

Recently, members of the Penn Yan Chapter of FFA elected the 1996-1997 officers.

The 1995-1996 President, Mike Lilyea, was re-elected to serve another term. Matt Fritz, a freshman, was elected as vice president. Emily Lilyea, also a freshman, was elected as secretary. The 1995-1996 treasurer, Natalie Jensen, was re-elected to serve another term. Marcy Quackenbush was also re-elected to serve another term as reporter.

Aaron Vaughan, a freshman at Marcus Whitman, was elected as the 1996-97 sentinel. John Kriese remains the Penn Yan Chapter FFA adviser. A new office, called the FFA student council representative, was filled by junior, Andrew Miller.

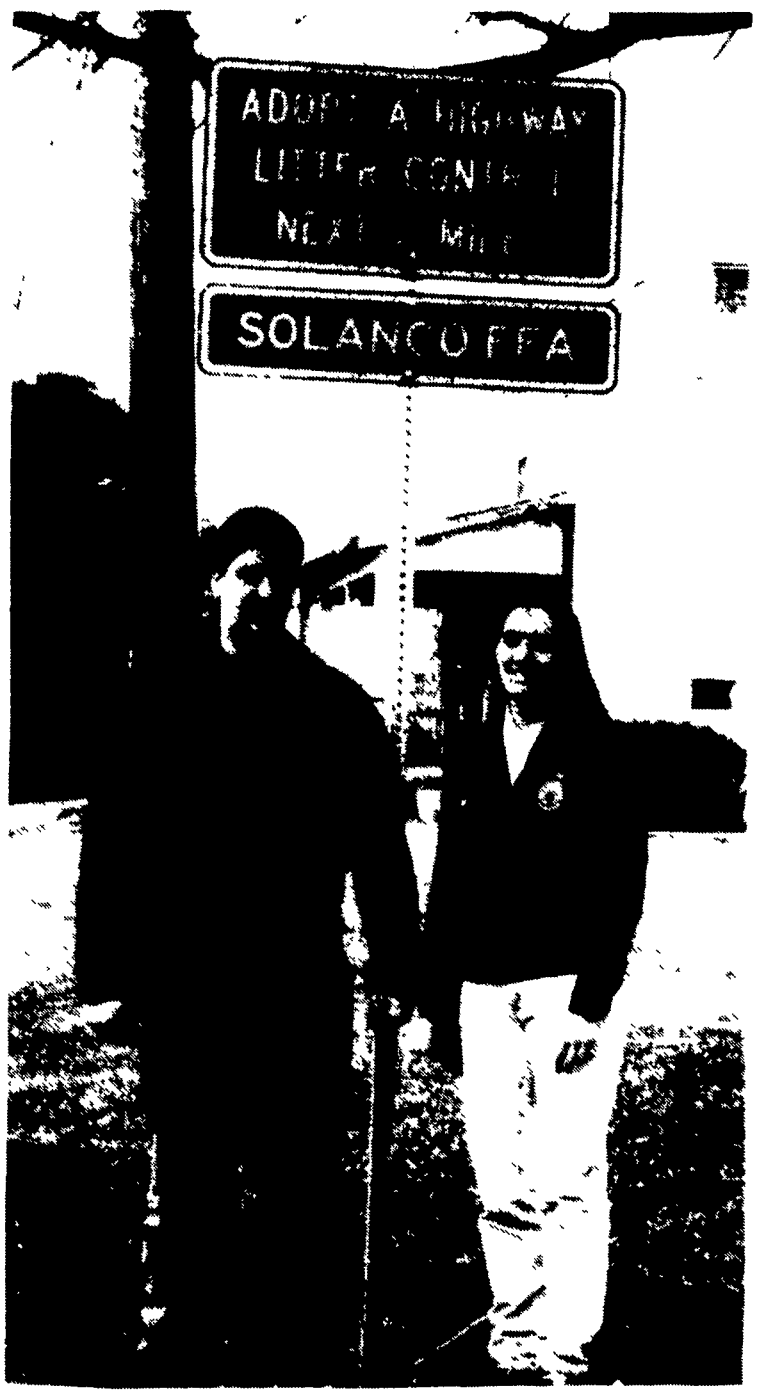
Solanco FFA Adopts Portion Of Route 272

The Solanco FFA will be taking on yet another community service project soon - cleaning a southern end highway.

The Solanco FFA recently signed contracts with the state Department of Transportation to adopt a portion of Route 272, from Fulton Food Market to Balance Meeting Road, and keep it clean of debris. Solanco senior and FFA member Gary Welk came up with the idea.

"I just thought it would be a good idea for a community service project," said Welk.

The FFA is running the Adopt-A-Highway program as a volunteer project. Through the chapter point system, members will earn points by participating in the cleanup of the two-mile stretch of road. All members who sign up to participate are required to watch a video and receive a safety vest supplied by the state.



FFA President Joy Young and member Gary Welk stand by a sign which marks a two-mile stretch of Route 272 that the Solanco FFA chapter has adopted.

MUELLER THE MILK COOLING SYSTEMS SPECIALISTS

Teen Shoppers

When's the last time you considered how much your teens influence your family's spending? According to American Demographics, in 1994, teens (ages 12-19) spent $63 billion of their own money and spent $37 billion of their family's money! Statistics document that teens have average weekly incomes of $76 for guys and $58 for girls. That's a lot of money!

When they're not actually handing over the dollars, teens revert to tactics like putting items in the cart when the parent is not looking, handing items to the cashier, and asking for items not on the list in order to get things they want. Teens generally seek brand name items which cost more. Major corporations are targeting advertisements to teens hoping to win a customer for a lifetime of spending. Studies show that teens are more brand conscious than ever. The quality of a brand's "coolness" is critical to determining whether teens will purchase it or not. Teens also help parents make decisions on electronics, fashions, etc.

Given these statistics and teen spending tactics, what can parents do to help their children develop responsible money management patterns? The pressures that kids have to own, wear, or use certain pricey items is tremendous. Family experts advise parents not to use the line of reasoning, "When I was your age . . .." It seems to have little effect in helping kids adopt a common-sense approach to spending. Rather, they advise parents to think and talk about the pressures that they have as adults to own a certain car, to live in a particular sized home, to dine at certain restaurants or attend charity functions. Let's be honest, being like everyone else makes most people feel more secure.

Discuss with children how you weigh choices, how it feels to go against the pressure. Talk about times you made the purchase and what that meant to other areas of the family budget. Ask teens what choices they might make in your situation. As they practice helping you make choices, they will begin to establish thinking patterns that they can use in their own social circles.

Walk yout teens through the process of mentally weighing choices by asking questions like: Who sets the fashion and tells us what to buy? When we hear product claims on TV are they always true? Do we know anyone who has bought a name brand product but has not been satisfied? Can we remember a time when we didn't do what everybody else did and it turned out all right?

Teens are regularly involved in family grocery purchases. Rather than giving them an exact list to follow, allow them to plan at least one evening/weekend meal. Give them a budget, and make them stick to that amount. See how they do shopping with coupons, etc. This will build important life skills.

Parents can teach life skills in other areas, too. Before each season, set a clothing budget. Discuss it with the teen. Explain that all items for the season must be paid for out of this budget, or they will have to earn the rest of the funds needed. Help them to look ahead (a vacation, camping trip, prom, sports uniform). Encourage comparison shopping through store ads. Discuss the pros and cons of buying clothes out of season. Martin Ford, professor of Education at George Mason University says, "Don't fret if [your children] occasionally blow three months' allowance on glow-in-the-dark sneakers and the like. Kids need to make mistakes to learn. Setting narrow rules for how they can spend defeats the purpose of the allowance." Of course, there are times when the parents do need to step in and draw the line on a purchase that may be detrimental to the child.

In addition to building wise spending skills, I encourage parents to make giving and saving a regular part of a teen's money habits. Place some expectations on them regarding the use of money, but allow them to determine to some degree the amounts that they will spend, save, and give to causes.

Consider providing "matching grants" for purchases that your children are willing to save money for. Give examples of how regular deposits in a savings account can add up. For instance, if you saved $2.74 each day, you could save $1,000 in a year's time. (That doesn't include interest.) Brainstorm ways to trim $2.74 out of your daily expenses AND brainstorm ways to spend the $1,000 that you save.

Budgeting should not be seen as punishment — scrimping and saving every cent and living sacrificially for years with no reward. Good money management means being able to accomplish the things that are the most important to us and being able to avoid the temptation of spending money on low-priority items. This is a lesson that teens should learn. Unfortunately, teens become used to having large amounts of discretionary dollars (while their parents are paying the bills) and then get into trouble in their adult years because their income does not keep up with their expenses. Parents can fight this trend by taking time to build money management responsibilities into their teens lives.

Enter Chicken Cook-Off Contest

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Since the Pennsylvania Dutch first settled in Lancaster County, their skills as good cooks have won worldwide acclaim with dishes that range from chicken pot pie to chicken corn soup to chicken and dumplings.

In honor of the traditional Pennsylvania Dutch dishes that feature chicken as their main ingredient, Pennfield Farms will host its Fourth Annual Chicken Cook-Off event on Saturday, June 22, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Lancaster County Food, Farm, and Fun Fest at The Artworks Expo Center at Donecker's in Ephrata.

The Pennfield Farms Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken Recipe Cook-Off is open to all cooks who wish to enter their favorite recipe for a traditional Pennsylvania Dutch dish and compete for $1,025 in cash prizes. In the past, the cook-off featured specified dishes like chicken pot pie and chicken corn soup. Last year Pennfield Farms decided to open the competition to all dishes with Pennsylvania Dutch roots.

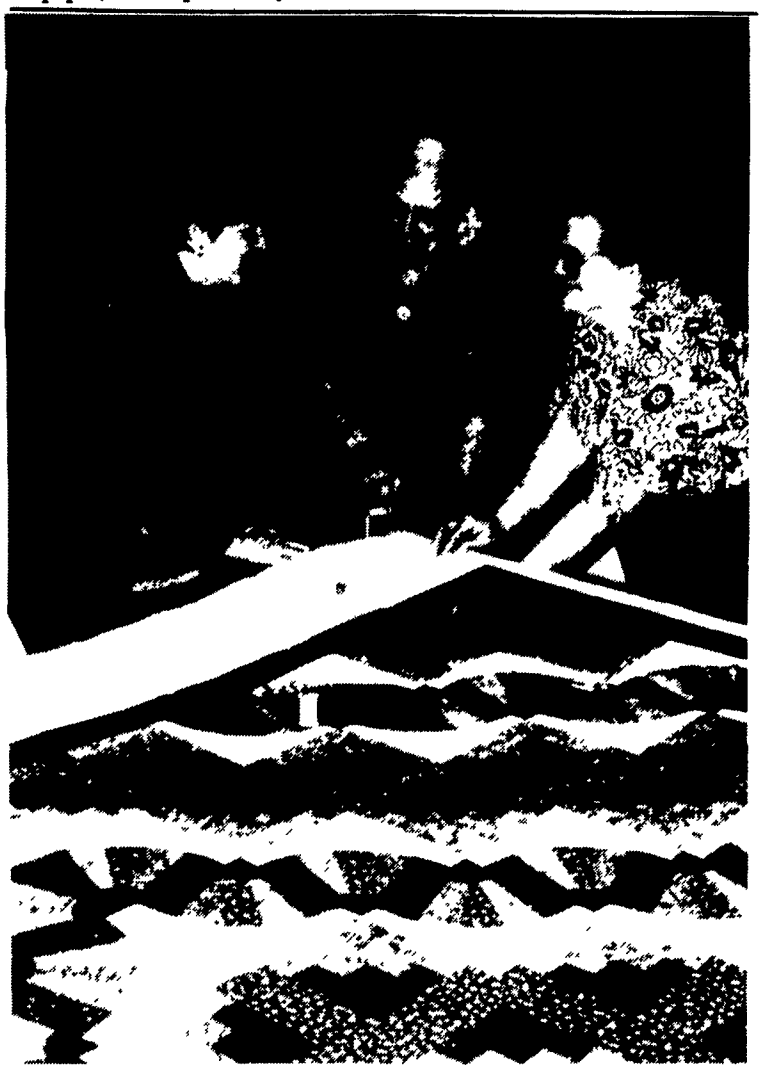
"We were delighted with the response, which included everything from chicken pie to baked chicken with filling. Out entrants proved that Pennsylvania Dutch cooking is extremely versatile," said Tim Horn, co-owner of Pennfield Farms, adding that, "The only limitations are that the dishes feature chicken and that they have traditional roots."

He noted that, "Since chicken is an essential ingredient in many popular Pennsylvania Dutch dishes, this contest is a natural. Obviously, it's a great opportunity for area men and women to show off their cooking skills with recipes that follow long-standing traditions or offer a new twist to classic Pennsylvania Dutch cuisine."

The Pennfield Farms Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken Recipe Cook-Off is part of the countywide 1996 Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dutch Visitors Bureau. Five finalists will compete in the June 22 event, with the first place winner receiving $500, second place $250, third place $150, fourth place $75, and fifth place $50.

To enter the contest, entries for the Pennfield Farms Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken Recipe Cook-Off must be postmarked and received by May 20. The entries will be narrowed down to five finalists by early June. All recipes must be original, not previously published, and include Pennfield Farms chicken. The final judging will be based on flavor, appearance, texture, ease of preparation, and quality.

To enter, a neatly typed or printed recipe on an 8½ x 11 sheet of paper, accompanied by name, address, and telephone number, should be sent to: Pennfield Farms Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken Recipe Cook-Off, P.O. Box 70, Fredericksburg, PA 17026. For information, call Pennfield Farms at (717) 865-2153.



These three women are some of the more than 60 quilters who helped quilt to benefit Ephrata Community Hospital and the future of Cancer Care Center. The quilts will be auctioned on June 1 at Ephrata Park as part of the Auxiliary's Hospital Day in the Park. In addition to the quilt auction and raffle, Hospital Day hosts live entertainment, crafts, games, amusements, good food, and more. For more information on Hospital Day or the quilts, call the Hospital's Development Office at (717) 738-6692.

New Holland To Supply Tractors To Olympic Games

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The world's leading producer of agricultural tractors has expanded the use of its equipment from the world's grain fields, farmsteads, and orchards to the world of Olympic yachting, equestrian events, and more.

As a supplier to the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games, New Holland North America, Inc. is providing more than 250 pieces of equipment, plus service staff and training, for use before and during the games.

"We are proud to make our equipment and people available at the 1996 games and at U.S. Olympic Training Centers," said Tom Kennedy, chief operating officer of New Holland North America. "It makes sense to support this worthy international event as part of our mission to be the best globally positioned company in the agricultural and industrial equipment business."

As part of the agreement officially signed in July 1995, with The Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games (ACOG), New Holland North American is providing tractors, skid-steer loaders, commercial mowers, loader-backhoes, accessory products and a number of utiligy carts custom-designed by the company for the needs of the Olympic organizing committee. The wide range of equipment is being used for grounds maintenance, towing, and materials handling at nine different sites during the Games.

Those sites include:

• Atlanta Beach for beach volleyball, using a New Holland tractor, finishing mower, front-end loader, rear scrape blade, and rear landscaping rake

• Georgia International Horse Park, Conyers, Ga., for equestrian, using several tractors, a disc mower, finishing mower, sicklebar mower, skid-steer loader, utility carts, flail mower, loader-backhoes, track levelers, posthole digger, rotary cutter and water tanks

• Georgia World Congress Center where fencing, handball, judo, table tennis, weightlifting and wrestling take place, using a tractor, skid-steer loader and utility carts

• Lake Lanier, Gainesville, Ga., for spring canoeing and kayaking, using tractors, a skid-steer loader, rotary cutter, rear scrape blade and posthole digger

• On the Ocoee River, in Tennessee, slalom canoeing and kayaking, supported by tractors, skid-steer loaders and utility carts

• At the Olympic Stadium, where the opening and closing ceremonies and track and field events take place, tractors, a finishing mower, loader-backhoe and utility carts will be in use

• The Olympic Village, home to 15,000 athletes, coaches, trainers and Olympic officials, will be provided with tractors, skid-steer loaders and utility carts

• At Wassaw Sound, Savannah, Ga., yachting will be supported by tractors, utility carts, a finishing mower, loader-backhoe, skid-steer loaders, rear blade, rotary cutter and posthole digger

• At Wolf Creek Complex, where the Olympic shooting events are held, a tractor and a finishing mower will be used.

Leafhopper-Resistant Alfalfa Welcome Relief

DEKALB, Ill. — They are at the top of nearly every alfalfa growers pest list when it comes to costly plant damage.

Silent but deadly, potato leafhoppers roam the northern and central alfalfa growing areas of the United Statees each summer. These small, green, wedge-shaped insects suck sap from plants and inject a toxin that causes alfalfa's vital vascular tissue to shut down, resulting in yellow leaves or "hopper burn." Unforunately yield and quality losses occur long before the yellowing is visible.

These mid-to-late season pests migrate with seasonal storm fronts flying at altitudes of several thousand feet. Once they touch down, Leafhoppers rapidly reproduce on a variety of host plants including trees, broadleaf plants, and alfalfa. Alfalfa damage occurs soon after the first cutting and can continue until late August as multiple generations of the pest reproduce. Winged adult leafhoppers are highly mobile, moving quickly into alfalfa fields from other host plants.

Until now, growers had to be content with limited success by attacking these pests with insecticides. Help is on the way. New experimental Dekalb leafhopper resistant varieties are turning the tide of battle with an innovative weapon which turns these unwelcome pests away — hungry.

Immediately following more field evaluations this planting season. Dekalb plans to offer one or more varieties with Hopper Guard(TM) protection in 1997. As breeding efforts continue, Dekalb plans to eventually integrate this valuable resistance trait into all of its new alfalfa varieties.

NC+ Announces Roundup Ready Soybean Varieties

LINCOLN, Neb. — NC+ Hybrids has tentatively released five Roundup Ready™ soybean varieti for next year, announces Doug Gloystein, NC+ soybean division manager. Roundup Ready soybeans contain a gene which provides tolerance to Roundup herbicide.

"This is a great opportunity for NC+ and its customers," said Gloystein. "The market has been preparing for this product for a long time."

If all goes as planned this summer, NC+ will have five Roundup Ready soybean varieties from early Group II to Group IV maturities ready for the 1997 planting season, he said.

These varieties are:

• 2A16RR: Early Group II variety with excellent tolerance to high pH soils and excellent disease protection.

• 2A76RR: Medium-tall, mid- to late Group II variety adapted from Illinois to Nebraska.

• 2A96RR: Late Group II, medium-tall variety with excellent agronomic characteristics as well as disease tolerance which allows it to perform well in adverse environments.

• 3A66RR: A medium, bush variety with mid to late Group III maturity adapted to all row widths.

• 4A16RR: Early Group IV variety with very good standability, adapted to all row widths and no-till planting.

One Call, One Person, No Problems

RACINE, Wis. — When it comes to parts and service, it's almost always an emergency.

That's why, according to John M. Johansen, Case Corporation CAM process manager, Case assembled an emergency response team.

"Downtime means lost time and money — two resources contractors aren't fond of giving up," said Johansen. "When equipment goes down, action and information have to be delivered almost immediately, and problems and potential problems have to be resolved quickly.

"Voice mail and transferring calls just won't cut it."

What will cut it? Accordiong to Johansen, customer account management (CAM) will.

CAM, he explained, guarantees no voice mail and no call transferring from person to person. When a call comes in to the Case Parts Customer Accoutn Management center, the account manager annswering the call has taken on a new responsibility.

"Through restructuring, we have created an account mentality for managing the relationship with our dealer customers," Johansen.

According to Johansen, CAM achieves this by instilling an atmosphere of ownership with every call.

"When an account manager takes a call, they own it from cradle to grave and it's their responsibility to make sure that the customer gets the answer he or she is looking for," said Johansen. "It's theirs until it comes to completion."

And there's no more list of phone numbers pointing parts department personnel toward the right person, department or service. There were 54 different phone numbers for questions, problems, general inquiries prior to the restructuring. Now there's one.

With the help of Customer Account Management, a potential parts emergency is averted at a Case dealership. Customer Account Management, or CAM, provides dealerships with parts-related information and services through a single phone call.

Alliance To Produce, Export High Oil Corn

WILMINGTON, Del. — DuPont Agricultural Products and Continental Grain Company announced they formed a marketing alliance to produce and export DuPont Optimum(TM) high oil corn to poultry and livestock industries worldwide. This alliance positions DuPont and Continental as the leaders in providing nutritionally enhanced corn to worldwide customers.

This agreement formalizes a three-year working relationship between DuPont and Continental, during which the companies produced and exported more than 400,000 metric tons of Optimum(TM). The companies are contracting with U.S. corn farmers now to produce more than 500,000 metric tons of Optimum(TM) for export in 1996-1997. Future Optimum(TM) corn products also will be marketed through the alliance.

Eighty percent of worldwide corn production is used to feed livestock. Optimum(TM) is a high-quality nutritionally enhanced corn that contains more energy and key amino acids than regular corn. It benefits customers by improving production efficiency, and by reducing inconvenient and costly steps of buying, storing and mixing inconsistent-quality fats for feed rations.

FORT ATKINSON, Wis. — A new low cost, high utility 16-inch wide belt conveyor for installations up to 50 feet is available form Van Dale.

Built for long life and large capacity, the Model 1650 belt conveyor features rigid 16 gauge galvanized steel sections that will span up to 20 feet between supports. Sections are available in 2½ feet, 5 feet or 10 feet lengths, and are designed with a 140-degree trough for higher concave belt capacity.

The Model 1650 is also easy to maintain and economical to run. An efficient tail section with simple belt tightener features a steel tapered, wing design roller that centers the belt and cleans itself of fines and feed. The lagged drive roller and low horsepower drive unit help keep operating costs low.

Depending upon the installation, the Model 1650 is available with either a smooth or textured ⅛ inch thick belt made of tough polyester with PVC coating and stainless steel splice.

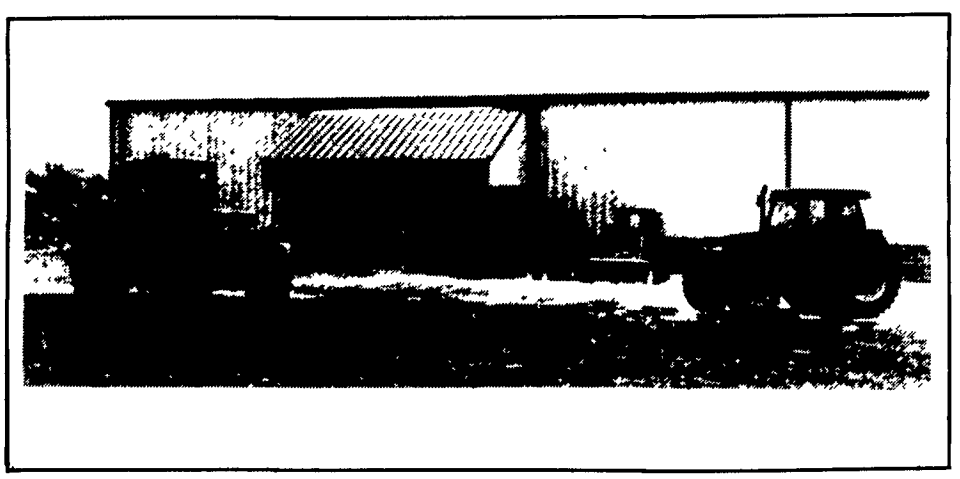
Eugene and Dan Eckroth continue a history of serving Case IH customers in three locations that started in 1947 when their grandfather started the business at New Ringgold. The brothers grew the business since they took over in 1983 to the point where they now have two additional locations, a store in Bloomsburg, and a brand new facility situated on five acres at Orefield.

"We feel strongly that we want to treat people like we want to be treated," Dan said. "We take time to listen to their needs and help them where we can. No high pressure, just the help they want."

The dealerships ship parts and do on-farm service work where needed in their areas. They are a full-line dealer that includes: combines, tractors, skid loaders, and tillage and planting equipment. They believe their new 17,500 square foot building to house service, parts, sales and warehouse departments and a show room, proves commitment to the future of the farm community.

Past customers are appreciated and the Eckroth brothers look forward to serving many old and new customers in the future.



A new facility at Orefield located along Kernsville Road gives the Eckroth dealerships 17,500 square feet of space to expand business and serve their customers better.

PLT® TREATMENT IN HIGHRISE POULTRY HOUSES FOR HOUSEFLY CONTROL

C. W. Pitts
Professor of Entomology

The control of house flies in highrise poultry houses is difficult and, therefore, we are continually looking for new tools to aid in their control.

The continued use of traditional insecticides has produced resistance in house fly populations and has made control more difficult. As a result, we are using more biological control agents and compounds that will not select for resistance when utilized in an integrated fly control system.

Several years ago I conducted some preliminary research on pH control in poultry manure as a possible tool for controlling flies in highrise poultry houses. Test results using different acids showed that if the pH was reduced to approximately 2 it would give effective control. Several different acids (and also bases) were used to lower (or raise) the pH. Results from those studies showed the use of more concentrated acids produced the desired reduction in pH.

At the time, I knew of no practical way to safely change the pH so drastically. Therefore, I simply filed the information. It was brought to my attention recently by Dr. Mac Terzich that there was a produced called Poultry Litter Treatment (PLT®) that is used in th broiler industry to aid in the reduction of ammonia. This is accomplished by reducing the pH of the litter.

Research was initiated at Penn State to determine the feasibility of using Poultry Litter Treatment (PLT®) to aid in controlling hou flies in poultry houses. PLT® chen ically is sodium hydrogen sulfate and comes in a dry granular form, making it easy to use in the field.

Initial studies were conducted to determine the required ratio of PLT® to a known amount of poult manure to produce a high mortality in house fly larvae. After several trials it was determined that 8 grams of PLT® per 100 grams poultry manure would result in a pH of 2 and would produce 100 percent mortality in fly larvae. The material works best at approximately 75% moisture and its ability to change pH decreases as the moisture is reduced.

The transfer of laboratory findings to field situations is sometimes difficult.

We are doing field studies using PLT® to develop techniques th will be effective under commercial conditions. Coverage of the manure piles in highrise poultry houses has been evaluated and it was determined that total coverage is not a viable alternative. However, we believe there is a good potential for spot treatment in the pits of highrise houses. We are treating spots where maggots are a seething mass. These spots are usually about 6-8 inches in diameter. We are adding approximately 2 cups of PLT®, then stirring. As we hav found in both the laboratory and the field, placing the sodium hydrogen sulfate on the surface does not produce an effective pH change.

Technical developments will continue until the best possible combination of amounts and stirring is determined to give effective control. This approach may not be the silver bullet that everyone is seeking, but it does appear to be another tool in the kit that we can use in an integrated fly control program.

Additional studies are under way to determine the effect of pH change on our best predator, Carcinopos Pumilo. Preliminary results indicate that the pH change does not effect the predatory capabilities of Carcinopos.

MADISON, Wis. — A Ladies of the '90s World Edition Sale along with a Prospect Show and Sale will be new highlights at the 1996 World Beef Expo here Oct. 10-12.

These activities, along with 17 breed shows, four breed sales and a youth sweepstakes, are part of the schedule announced by World Beef Expo.

According to Livestock Manager Diane Nichols, the Ladies of the '90s World Edition Sale will be the first multibreed sale at World Beef Expo. Up to 40 females will be offered. Breeds likely to re represented include Chianina, Shorthorn, Salers, Maine-Anjou, and Limousin. For the fourth year Angus, Polled Hereford, Simmental, and Belgian Blue breeders will also be holding sales at World Beef Expo.

"The Prospect Show and Sale are a result of increased interest after World Beef Expo moved to an October time slot," said Nichols. "We expect that the fall show will attract the audience looking to purchase a show animal for the year."

More than 75 steers and heifers are expected to compete in the show. The top 25 placing animals will then be offered at the Prospect Sale.

The October show will also include the fourth World Beef Expo Cook-Off, the Stockman School, an expanded 50-booth craft show, and an antique toy tractor show. Last year, World Beef Expo drew 16,500 beef producers, 300 commercial exhibitors, and more than 1,400 cattle from 23 states and two Canadian provinces.

Pleasure, Draft Horse Clinic Successful

SEAFORD, Del. — Sixteen students successfully completed a three-day, basic draft and driving horse clinic at The Carriage Place, hosted by Ed and Deana Banning on their 45-acre farm between Seaford and Bridgeville.

Six students came from Pennsylvania, six from New Jersey, and four from Maryland, each interested in learning more about driving a horse.

The morning schedules began with feeding and grooming the horses, followed by seminars on safety, nutrition, training in a round pen, dental care, grooming and braiding, harnessing, harness care, hoof care and shoeing.

The afternoons were reserved for hands-on driving by the five teams of students, each assigned a qualified instructor as their teamleader. Clydesdale, Belgian, Haflinger, and Percheron horses were used from a single, to a two, three or four horse hitch, either ground driving, breaking, training, pulling carts, work sleds, hay wagons, manure spreader, forecarts, hitch wagons or a carriage.

The staff and students went to Ed and Lois Evans' farm and Museum at Pepper Box (Laurel, Del.). All enjoyed seeing the many antique horse drawn vehicles, equipment and machinery, followed by a spread of desserts fit for a king. When the Banning's returned home around 10 p.m., they found a new colt born to Patty Ann, one of their Clydesdale mares. The new foal weighed in at 185 pounds and was 11½ hands tall.

The last morning was reserved for a seminar by a local carriage builder, an exhibition by a team of mamoth work mules and their teamsters, plus hands-on in grooming the horse and loading the Cinderella carriage for an afternoon wedding.

Two more clinics are scheduled for this year: June 13-15 and October 10-12. For more information, call Ed Banning at (302) 628-0100.

PLANNING AHEAD WITH ANNUAL FORAGES

Marvin H. Hall
Penn State University

Forage shortages most often occur during the summer when dry conditions reduce productivity or in the early winter when cool temperatures restrict plant growth of perennial forage crops. By planning ahead for periods of low production from the perennial species, annual crops can be planted which will provide forage during these periods.

In the event that the summer is not dry and perennial forages maintain high levels of production, then the summer annual crops will not necessarily be lifesavers but can be utilized along with the perennial crops as a source of forage. However, it is important to remember that annual crops need to be a planned component of the forage system and not a reaction after the perennial crops begin to decline in production.

While no forage species could have maintained high production during last summer's dry weather, some annual forage species could have been more productive than our traditional perennial forage crops. That is, if they had been established before the dry weather. The decision to plant an annual crop as insurance against dry weather, should be an economical one. In a year such as last, the value of any forage was high and the economic benefits of annual forage crop production were obvious. However, in a wet summer, the economics of production are not necessarily negative since the crop can still be utilized as a forage for livestock consumption. The annual crop simply removes some of the risks associated with farming in the unpredictable weather of Pennsylvania.

Where Do Annual Forage Crops Fit?

Summer annual grasses, including sorghum, sudangrass, sorghum-sudan hybrids, and millet, grow best at relatively high temperatures (80°F) and maintain production under conditions of limited moisture. They should be planted from two weeks after corn until the end of June. Seedings may be made as late as July 15 in emergency situations, but yields will be reduced because of limited moisture and cool temperatures during the fall. Summer annual grass harvest for silage should occur when the grasses are in the medium to hard dough stage. The best time to graze these grasses is when they are between 18 and 30 inches tall. Contact your County Extension Office to obtain Agronomy Facts 23, "Summer Annual Grasses for Supplemental or Emergency Forage" for more detailed information about use of summer annual grasses in your system.

Brassicas, including rape, kale, turnip and swede, have different growth characteristics and can be seeded in the spring or late summer to provide a range of utilization periods. Rape and turnip can usually be grazed about 90 days after planting while kale and swede normally require about 150 days before harvesting (Table 1).

Table 1. Characteristics and seeding rate of brassica forage crops.

Crop	Plant part consumed	Seeding to harvest	Regrows after harvest	Seeding rate
Rape	herbage	90-100 d	yes	3.5-4 lb/acre
Kale	herbage	150-180 d	no*	3.5-4 lb/acre
Turnip	herbage and root	90-100 d	yes	1.5-2 lb/acre
Swede	herbage and root	150-180 d	no	1.5-2 lb/acre

*An exception is the stemless cultivar 'Premier' which will regrow after harvest.

Small grains, such as wheat, barley, rye and tritcale, should be planted from mid-August to early September and can be utilized for grazing from October through December and again in early spring. If the small grain is to be harvested for silage, grazing should be discontinued when the plants begin upright growth in the spring.

The key to success with annual forage crops is to plan ahead. By planning ahead and establishing a small portion of your forage acreage to annual forages, you provide insurance against inclement weather with minimal net cost even if the weather turns out to be ideal for perennial forage crop production.

Our unique disc-shaped closure could make the Ritchie Thrifty King the most versatile fountain on the market.

Ritchie Protects From The Cold Too

If you worry about freezing, Ritchie's patented water seal and insulated drink well keep cold air from getting to the valve and prevent heat loss. "This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

The Best of the Best
The Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality coating represents the best of the best in the Wheeling Corrugating line of premium galvanized roofing and siding. Every panel that carries the 2 ounce coating assures you are getting the toughest, the most durable, the most corrosion resistant galvanized sheet available in today's marketplace.
2oz. Seal of Quality Wheeling
Genuine Old-Time Quality
Every Wheeling 2 oz sheet is manufactured from heavy gauge steel, topped with an extra thick zinc coating, and formed into profiles that contribute strength and good looks Build with a Wheeling 2 oz sheet and you'll be working with the kind of durability and dependability that's been a standard in the industry for almost 100 years
The Proof is in the Process
The performance behind the Wheeling 2 oz Seal of Quality is possible because of Wheeling's patented Cook Norteman manufacturing process This technology allows a more consistent quality product, and a more uniform coating with unsurpassed zinc adhesion The process takes more handling and more time, but the end result is a super premium panel that has its own limited 20 year performance warranty

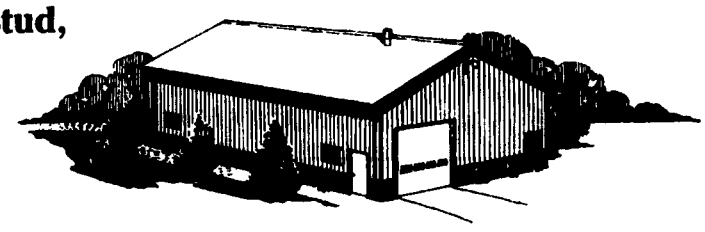
The Building you want. The Lease you need.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

LLAMAS

If you've been considering starting in llamas, or having a llama for a pet, why not stop in to see our herd.

Our young males start at $500, our weanling females at $2,500, our pregnant females at $3,500. A deposit will hold any of our crias (baby llamas) for you.

We prefer selling off the farm, rather than subjecting our animals to the stress of auctions.

All of our llamas are registered with the International Llama Registry. Some of the finest wool and blood lines can be found in our herd, including Otter Creek Harold.

All llamas can be halter led, and are gently trained by teenagers.

Farm Link, Bureau Team Up For Next Generation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — What do you do when, after having spent a lifetime building your farm, you cannot find someone from the younger generation to either assist you as you slow down or pass the farm on to as you retire? Where do you turn, what do you do?

Farmers thinking about retiring and individuals looking to enter farming are invited to attend a workshop sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and the Center for Rural Pennsylvania's Farm Link on Friday, April 26. The daylong program will be held at the Wolf's Den Restaurant off Exit 7, Interstate 80, near Knox.

Farm Link coordinator Marion Bowlan said, "The future of Pennsylvania agriculture depends on young people being able to enter farming. Current statistics indicate that of the 44,000 farms in Pennsylvania, approximately 10,000 will need to be transferred in the next decade or risk the possibility of going out of existence.

"Because it is a capital intensive business, many young people do not have the economic resources needed to start up a farm. At the same time, many older farmers are finding it difficult to phase out of farming and maintain adequate resources for retirement."

Pennsylvania Farm Link brings together experienced farmers nearing retirement or other interested landholders with beginning farmers who want to operate their own farms. Working to help beginning farmers realize their dream of obtaining their own farm, Bowlan said the program "needs farmers nearing retirement and landholders who would like to leave a living legacy, a working farm family, on their land."

Donald Hummel, manager of Farm Bureau's Farm Management Services, said this workshop will continue Farm Bureau's long history of providing estate planning and farm transfer planning services to farmers. Gary Heim, Farm Bureau's Legal Service Plan attorney, will discuss legal aspects involved in transferring a farm to both heirs and non-heirs and Hummel will give examples of how farmers can make the transfers. Farm Service Agency will discuss beginning farmer loans and the workshop will conclude with a panel discussion of farmers talking about the farm transfer process, the steps involved, and how the transfer is working on their farms.

Farm owners and people who would like to enter farming are invited to attend this workshop to learn more about estate planning and farm transfers. The workshop will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude by 2:30 p.m. Preregistration is required and may be done by calling Marion Bowlan, Pennsylvania Farm Link, at (717) 787-9555. A workshop fee of $10, payable to the Center for Rural Pennsylvania and covering lunch and materials, should be mailed to the Farm Link Program at 212 Locust Street, Suite 604, Harrisburg, PA 17101, no later than April 22.

Livestock Co-Op Meets

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. — The 55th annual meeting of The Livestock Cooperative Auction Market Association of North Jersey, Inc. was recently held at the Tranquility Community House.

Fifty-five members were in attendance. The following members were elected to serve on the board of directors: Carl Sigler of Washington, N.J.; Jacob Tanis of Augusta, N.J.; Orrie Terpstra of Columbia, N.J.; and Michael Toretta of Asbury, N.J.

A review of the auction's annual statement showed gross sales of more than $7 million for the year of 1995.

Following the meeting the directors held a reorganization meeting and elected the following officers for a three-year term: Orie Terpstra, Columbia, N.J., president; James Watters, Port Murray, N.J., vice president; Carl Sigler, Washington, N.J., treasurer; and Harold Pittenger, Andover, N.J., secretary.

Earth Day April 22

ALBANY, N.Y. — When it comes to protecting the earth and its resources, farmers are this country's true protectors of the environment.

According to John Lincoln, president of the 25,700-member New York Farm Bureau and an Ontario County dairy farmer, "Farmers are active environmentalists, not environmental activists. New York farmers own about eight million acres of land, or about 30 percent of the state. On that land we grow bountiful supplies of food for human and livestock consumption."

Lincoln said, "Farmers provide food and habitat for about 75 percent of the state's wildlife. In addition, our land serves to protect many wetlands, woods and streams, as well as the open space that supplies the panorama for many of the state's scenic vistas."

He said, "Some farmers are even creating special wildlife habitats."

Regarding agricultural practices, Lincoln said New York farmers take their active environmental role seriously.

"Through a program known as Intehrated Pest Management (IPM), we are cutting back on the use of agricultural pesticides through incorporating non-chemical techniques, like insect pheromone traps, crop rotations and pest predators with the judicious, time-sensitive use of agricultural pesticides. We are practicing soil conservation, cutting back on fuel usage by using no-till planting, and working to eliminate the run-off of livestock manure."

Lincoln said, "Today's farmers are working harder and smarter to be the true protectors of the environment. For us, every day is Earth Day."

The 26th observance of Earth Day is April 22.

CASE IH Proven & Tested To Customer Satisfaction.

The Case International 8312 disc mower conditioner just keeps on cutting – no matter what it encounters Tangled undergrowth, rodent mounds ant hills or heavy hay are no match for the heat-treated high-speed rotary discs at the heart of the 8312

A center pivot tongue lets you cut a full 12-foot swath in either direction and maneuver around obstacles Lay down a quick-drying swath or fluffy windrow and, depending on your crop, conditioning rolls can be quickly adjusted for optimum drying

If continuous cutting with a center pivot machine is important to you, stop in and see the Case International 8312

S.I. FEEDERS

REBATE

$100 ON ALL ARROWFRONT® FEEDER WAGONS
$20 ON ALL BUNKS UNTIL* JUNE 30, 1996

The S.I. Feeder is designed to minimize feed loss. This is done with functional slant bars, low set design, proper pan depth, feed saving edges, and other concepts to reduce waste.

The S.I. Feeder Wagons have the versatility to feed any type of grain, forage, or even a total mixed ration. Four foot high inserts are options to increase load capacity and to control the downward flow of feed.

The Arrow Front design replaces the old goose-neck concept, eliminating 90 degree welded joints, making it stronger and more durable.

Get an S.I. Feeder now to get maximum efficiency of your quality feeds.

"Harness® Xtra: the best weed control I've seen in years"

Rick Schlosberg, 2,000 acres
Newtown Square, Pennsylvania

"I had always been a big Bicep user in corn, until I started seeing frequent mid-season escapes of giant foxtail. Even spiking the Bicep with extra Dual didn't work. To make a long story short, I went with Harness® Xtra on 90 percent of my acreage in 1995. And, I'll be doing it again this year.

With Harness Xtra, I had excellent long-season weed control of giant foxtail, fall panicum and triazine-resistant lambsquarters. I saw no escapes at all for the first time in over six years. It saved me money, too, because I didn't have to spike it to get consistent control or come back with resprays.

I'm using Harness Xtra 5.6L in a big way this season. I encourage you to do the same."

Post-dip—Supreme

Pre-prep—Kleen & Dri

BOUMATIC
The Dairy Equipment Division of DEC International, Inc

Kleen & Dri*— The perfect pre-prep, because you do it all with:

ONE towel ONE step

Just wipe the teats with one of the extra-thick Kleen & Dri towelettes and attach the milking unit. That's it. One step, and you've effectively and gently destroyed a wide-range of micro-organisms, including mastitis-causing bacteria, on the teat ends.

So it's the only ONE pre-prep you need.

Supreme teat dip and Sprayable Supreme
.5% CHG with 5% Skin Conditioners
The perfect post-dip, because it keeps killing bacteria even after it has dried on the teat end. CHG, the main disinfectant, provides residual killing for up to 10 hours. Coupled with superb skin conditioners that keep the teat ends soft and supple, Supreme is tough to beat as the ultimate protection for teat ends.

Supreme. For supreme teat end protection year round.

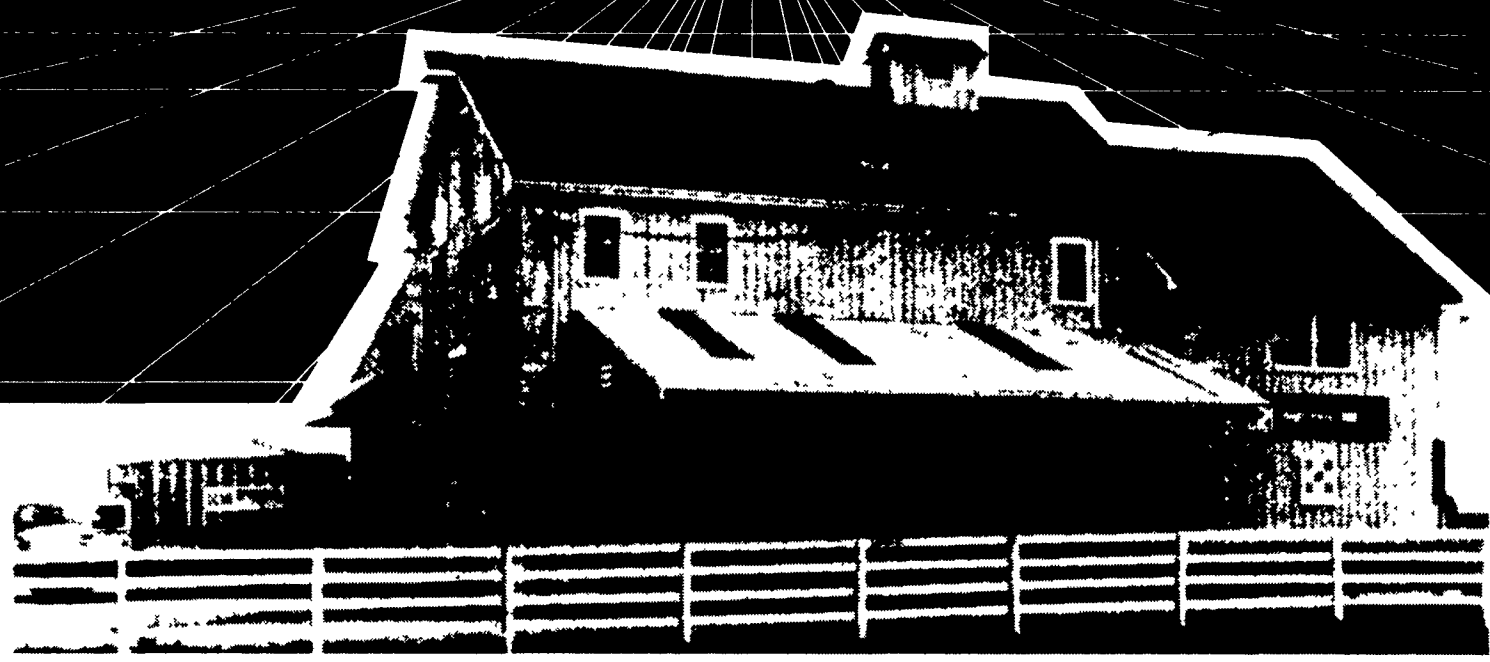
PURINA PROFILE



The High Bros. Mill, Gordonville, has been serving Lancaster County farmers for more than 50 years.

HIGH BROS. MILL

For the High Brothers – Leon, Douglas, and Gregory – their Purina dealership located between New Holland and Intercourse in Lancaster County is a way of life. Not only was their father working for a Purina dealer before they were born, in 1945 he bought the present mill, and the brothers began in partnership with their father before he retired in 1972.

At the time, they sold a lot of chicken and hog feed, but now their customers are mostly Amish dairy farmers. High Bros. brings the corn from the individual farms to the mill to make a complete feed formulated with Purina concentrates. Then the farmers' grain is taken back to the farm as a complete feed. They also deliver a lot of bulk and bagged Purina feed directly to the farm from the Camp Hill Purina mill. High Bros. is serving the second and third generations of farmer customers at their mill.

"Service is a big thing," Leon said. "People like to buy from persons they like. We have been in the community for a long time and we treat our customers well."

High Bros. does a lot of forage testing and Purina helps with formulas to balance the rations. Their service people know cows.

The quality of Purina feeds is excellent. Farmers know how their cows are producing, and if you shortchange in the quality of feed, it shows up in lower production very fast. The younger generation looks for results. And with Purina feeds, the High Bros. dealership can show their farm customers the good results.

"We appreciate our customer's business and we bend over backward to supply their feed," Leon said. "We never let a farmer without feed. We are a family operation and we work at it ourselves. Through research, Purina gives the farmer what he needs, not what some dealer wants the farmer to have. While others set a price and then make a feed to fit a lower price, Purina puts the quality into the feed first and then sets the price that is very competitive in today's market."

Leon High manages the mill where farmer's corn is brought in to be ground and mixed with Purina concentrates and returned to the farm as a completely balanced dairy ration.
